Islam is a major religion in Southeast Asia with Indonesian Muslims comprising the largest Muslim population in the world. Events and developments since 11 September 2001 have added greater attention to Islam and its adherents in this part of the world. This general survey of Islam in Southeast Asia is intended to inform, explain, and update readers about the more significant aspects of Islam in Southeast Asia. Then and now, these include the following: the geographical origins and sources by which the faith spread in this region; the social, economic, and political profiles of the Muslim communities; relations between Muslims and non-Muslims and between Muslims and the state; the strands and trends that shape the role of Islam and the Muslims in the national body politic; and the challenges confronting Muslims in confronting the vicissitudes of their lives in this era of rapid change characterized by modernization, capitalism, secularization, and globalization. The discussion will begin with an overview of the broad picture of Islam and the Muslims in the region as a whole, covering both Muslim majority and Muslim minority countries. This will be followed by case study analysis of Islam and the Muslims in individual countries: Indonesia, Malaysia, Brunei, Singapore, Thailand, Philippines, Myanmar, Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos. Given the difficulty of writing on such a complex and contentious topic, this book attempts to present the subject matter in a manner that is sufficiently objective to scholars and yet simple and accessible enough to be readily understood by ordinary readers.

Although more than half of the world's Muslims live in Asia, most books on contemporary Islam focus on the Middle East, giving short shrift to the dynamic and diverse presence of Asian Islam in regional and global politics. The Muslims of Asia constitute the largest Muslim communities in the world. Indonesia, Pakistan, Bangladesh, India, and Central Asia. In recent years, terrorist bombings in Bali, separatist conflicts in Thailand and the Philippines, and opposition politics in Central Asia all point to the strategic importance of Asian Islam. In Asian Islam in the 21st Century, terrorism and its effects are placed within the broader context of Muslim politics and how Islamic ideals and movements, mainstream and extremist, have shaped Asian Muslim societies. Democratization, experiments, successful and unsuccessful, are examined. The rise of radical militant movements is analyzed and placed in historical perspective the result is an insightful portrait of the rich diversity of muslim politics and discourse that continue to affect asian muslim majority and minority countries specialists and students of islamic studies religion and international affairs and comparative politics as well as general readers will benefit from this sorely needed comprehensive analysis of a part of the world that has become increasingly important in the 21st century in the post 9 11 era the complexity of muslim and non muslim relations within europe has sharpened global events have contributed to the reshaping of religious and cultural in particular muslim representations and arenas the position of europe as such is in doubt much of its future depends on how to deal with the emerging new ideals and realities with respect to religion and the challenges of islam in europe muslim participation in contemporary european affair has been long standing but in the past the minority status of such ethnic and religious communities from the middle east has never been in question now they are cities and communities now boast muslim majorities questions emerge of bilingualism political participation head dress at public institutions of learning and protection of other minorities such as the jewish community on the other side european concerns over immigration unemployment health and welfare for the newly arrived and the admission of predominantly muslim states into the european community have begun to test the social welfare systems of many nations within europe the idea of cultural exchange based on tolerance has lost its magical aura volume 6 of the yearbook of the sociology of islam presents a variety of discussions and case studies from different european countries related to how muslims are responding to this situation how they and muslim representation change and how cultural and public negotiation is involved in shaping new perceptions of islam and europe based on a reading of classical islamic literature the writings of modern muslims and on extensive travel and interviews this book discusses ways in which muslim peoples adapt themselves to a world composed of sovereign nation states having peaceful and equal relations with both non muslim states and collectivities of other muslims the classical and medieval legal theory of islam appears to place two obstacles in the way of such adaptations it divides the world into two areas muslim and non muslim between which relations can at best be those of truce and it demands that the life of societies should be regulated by the will of god as revealed in the qu ran not by the will of rulers or of the people dr piscatori shows that the traditional theory provides for some degree of territorial pluralism which has been clearly reflected in the historical experience whereby stable nation states have emerged and become part of the international order
