the social sciences offer a variety of theories on how children develop and various theories and disciplines apply their own vocabularies and conceptualise different aspects of the processes of socialization this book looks at the theorizing of socialization in sociology anthropology psychology in the life course approach and as the interplay of genetics and environmental factors it analyses the dominant perspectives and viewpoints within each discipline and field and shows how the various theories and disciplines apply their own vocabularies and conceptualise different aspects of the processes of socialization it argues that socialization does not represent a fixed trajectory into a static social order and that different disciplines meet the challenges of complex developmental processes and changing environments in different ways socialization is a fundamental concept in sociology but sociology has only to a limited degree sought to produce a coherent understanding of the processes of socialization which has to encompass the interplay of societal psychological and genetic factors this book draws the threads together and by doing so offers a general framework for our understanding of the socialization process at the centre of this process is the child as a subject in an interplay with the patterns and significant others of the micro environment as well as with the macro conditions of the modern knowledge based economies this is a global reference to travel medicine written by a team of international experts this text examines all aspects of travel medicine music sampling has become a predominantly digitalized practice it was popularized with the rise of rap and hip hop as well as ambient music scenes but it has a history stretching back to the earliest days of sound recording and experimental music making from around the world digital tools and networks allow artists to sample music across national borders and from diverse cultural traditions with relative ease prompting questions around not only fair use copyright and freedom of expression but also cultural appropriation and copywrongs for example non commercial forms of sharing that are now commonplace on the web bring musicians and their audiences into closer contact with emerging regimes of commercial web tracking and state sponsored online surveillance moreover when musicians actively engage in political or social causes through their music they are liable to both commercial and state forces of control shifts back to corporate ownership and control of the global music business online and offline highlight competing claims for commercial and cultural ownership and control of sampled music from local communities music labels and artists each case study is based on archival research close listening and musical analysis alongside conversations and public reflections from artists such as david byrne annirudha das asian dub foundation john cage brian eno sarah jones gil scott heron karlheinz stockhausen dunya yunis and sonia mehta sampling politics provides ways to listen and hear again how sampling practices and music making work on its own terms and in context in so doing m i franklin corrects some errors in the public record addressing some longstanding misperceptions over the creative legal and cultural legacy of music sampling in some cases of rich and complex practices that have also been called musical borrowing cultural appropriation or theft this book considers the musicalities and musicianship at stake in each case as well as the respective creative practices and performance cultures underscoring the ethics of attribution and collaboration when sampling artists make music
