contrary to conventional wisdom about capitalism the pervasive norm to acquire wealth and the zealous mission to fight poverty have their double sides often unsaid in that there is no wealth without poverty just as there is no poverty without wealth such that more wealth also creates more poverty consider for instance america which is regarded by many as the wealthiest country on earth at the turn of the 21st century yet this wealthiest country on earth is also the most hated one around the world as a soul searching question after the september 11 2001 terrorist attacks is why do they hate us so isn t it paradoxical dr baofu asks that this enormous accumulation of wealth ends up creating more hatred and violence around the world instead of contributing to a more prosperous humane one is there something fundamentally wrong in this seductive idea of wealth acquisition in capitalism the wealth paradox disappears as dr civilization which prides itself on acquiring wealth as the central focus of life meaning is too inadequate to fulfill fully the domains of life on material relational and spiritual concerns it is so since capitalism as a historical contingency to fight the material impoverishment of pre modernity overdoes itself as a historical solution to the problem of poverty and will not last to be superseded by what dr baofu originally proposed as its successor post capitalism the power struggle how it enhances or destroys our lives maintains that our naivete about internal power and how it should modulate the need for control allows us to expect that external power the attempt to control people and things in our environment through force intimidation or even persuasion will resolve our problems in actuality what we need to do is further develop our sense of internal power a divine force based on our ability to control our natural internal impulses dr william t shannon a noted social psychologist and management consultant skillfully explains how our need for power and control is the basis of our self concept and as nietzsche states is the common denominator which more than anything else explains all of man's activities this remark echoes the author's belief that the need for power is fundamental to human behavior in regard to social problems e g prejudice and aggression relationships and dealing within a professional milieu just as there have been numerous perspectives on power there have also been many attempts most of which were unsuccessful to define its nature Dr Shannon shrewdly points out that people can improve their awareness of what constitutes internal and external power basic and complex techniques exist such as relaxation meditation attitude and lifestyle changes to focus our sense of internal power as well as activities that we can do individually or collectively to achieve a balance between internal and external power
