this book explores two contemporary combative views regarding the search for just families these views arise from the conundrum of the family being seen as a supportive nurturing haven versus a grievously unjust harmful institution that violates the rights and freedoms of any individual family member triggered by anti family movements which have been inspired by the ideas of some theorists and writers the book addresses the question is family destined to wither away it challenges the radical idea that the solution to the problem of unjust families is their complete replacement by purportedly just anti familial alternatives chhanda gupta advances a distinct reformist and reconciliatory view that the expulsion of either side of the family anti family binary is not the answer she seeks to syncretize the seemingly irreconcilable ideas propagated through that philosophical binary furthermore she urges that the search for just families must find its answer in clarifying how the term just applies to the characters behaviors and attitudes of people who comprise actual families the search is not for a perfectly just society or polity or even for a perfectly just family instead it is a search for ways to redress the remediable injustices that occur in families in order to benefit and uplift individuals and families and the societies in which they live in the japanese language the word ie denotes both the materiality of homes and family relations within the traditional family and family house often portrayed in ideal terms as key foundations of japanese culture and society have been subject to significant changes in recent years this book comprehensively addresses various aspects of family life and dwelling spaces exploring how homes household patterns and kin relations are reacting to contemporary social economic and urban transformations and the degree to which traditional patterns of both houses and households are changing the book contextualises the shift from the hegemonic post war image of standard family life to the nuclear family and to a situation now where japanese homes are more likely to include unmarried singles childless couples divorcees unmarried adult children and elderly relatives either living alone or in nursing homes it discusses how these new patterns are both reinforcing and challenging typical understandings of japanese family life family mobility decisions reveal much about how the public and private realms of social life interact and change this sociological study explores how contemporary families reconcile individual members career and education projects within the family unit over time and space and unpacks the intersubjective constraints on workforce mobility this australian mixed methods study sampled defence force families and middle class professional families to illustrate how families educational projects are necessarily and deeply implicated in issues of workforce mobility and immobility in complex ways defence families move frequently often absorbing the stresses of moving through viscous institutions as private troubles in contrast the selective mobility of middle class professional families and their no go zones contribute to the public issue of poorly serviced rural communities families with different social material and vocational resources at their disposal are shown to reflexively weigh the benefits and risks associated with moving differently the book also explore how priorities shift as children move through educational phases the families narratives offer empirical windows on larger social processes such as the mobility imperative the gender imbalance in the family's intersubjective bargains labour market credentialism the social construction of place and the family's role in the reproduction of class structure treatment for the chronically ill has traditionally focused on physical factors and symptoms despite the fact that chronic illness also affects life in an emotional and spiritual way the approach toward treatment described in this volume addresses all aspects of a patient's life including their interpersonal experiences and relationships presenting family therapists and family physicians as part of the same treatment team this volume thus provides a foundation for understanding the role illness plays in family systems the meaning an individual gives to an illness is profoundly influenced by and influences that person's social world in turn social culture and social networks both shape and are shaped by the individual's experiences exploring how the meaning of chronic illness is defined tells us much about the individual's interpersonal relations and the resultant meaning given to the person's illness as a consequence family therapy must be an integral part of the treatment plan for chronically ill patients family therapy and chronic illness approaches chronic illness from a leading edge perspective this approach enables therapists to listen attentively to complicated narratives because these stories feelings and emotions are difficult to describe the clients have demanding telling tasks while therapists have demanding listening tasks this book sends an important message not just about the chronically ill but also about their families therapists and doctors and how they can work together to develop the best treatment plan possible over the past three decades migration has become the main driver of population growth or of preventing its decrease in many eu countries the presence of so many families with a migrant background is however to some extent an unexpected phenomenon arising from the permanent settlement of migrant guest workers expected to be temporary residents and from other unplanned processes such as decolonization and the influx of asylum seekers moreover family reunification is today one of the main legal channels by which migrants come to europe so it is no coincidence that the main issues animating european public debate on inter ethnic coexistence involve family religion and the relationships between genders and generations finally the migrant family has to some extent become a lens through which to analyze many key topics connected with the present and future of european societies this work migrant families and religious belonging is a collection of nine essays exploring the relationship between family religion and immigration these essays mainly focus on the integration process with particular attention to the experience of migrants offspring the book consists of an introductory chapter and four thematic sections and topics covered include gender equality forced marriages child fostering care and religious radicalization the relationship between family religion and immigration provides a fascinating perspective to explore and shed light on european society today the book will be of interest to a wide range of academics researchers and practitioners the family institution is undergoing a radical transformation the modern meanings of kinship marriage parenthood gender and sexuality are now being questioned and debates on same sex marriages and parenthood or on divorce and blended families are reflective of these challenges the un making of the modern family is neither an indictment of the new family nor a rallying cry it is a classical exercise of family sociology that draws upon a range of disciplines history anthropology psychology and demography to provide an interpretive model for understanding contemporary changes in the family it explores traditional family forms in order to identify changes that gave birth to the ideal type of the modern family and it discusses how the modern family's constituent elements the family as institution conjugal and parent child relationships and gender and sexuality relate to modernity's central feature the concept of the individual by reconstructing an archetype of the modern family this book explains why individuals have experienced its deconstruction as a profound identity crisis it will appeal to anyone concerned with the future of the post modern family and society published originally by les presses de l université laval as la fin de la famille moderne this book was awarded the 2000 1 prix jean charles falardeau for the best book published in french in canada in the field of social sciences
