using a gender sensitive political economy approach this book analyzes the emergence of new migration patterns between central mexico and the east coast of the united states in the last decades of the twentieth century and return migration during and after the global economic crisis of 2007 based on ethnographic research carried out over a decade details of the lives of women and men from two rural communities reveal how neoliberal economic restructuring led to the deterioration of livelihoods starting in the 1980s similar restructuring processes in the united states opened up opportunities for mexican workers to labor in us industries that relied heavily on undocumented workers to sustain their profits and grow when the great recession hit in the context of increasingly restrictive immigration policies some immigrants were more likely to return to mexico than others this longitudinal study demonstrates how the interconnections among class and gender are key to understanding who stayed and who returned to mexico during and after the global economic crisis through these case studies the authors comment more widely on how neoliberalism has affected the livelihoods and aspirations of the working classes this book will be of key interest to scholars students and practitioners in migration studies gender studies politics and more broadly to international relations anthropology development studies and human geography this volume focuses on intersections of race class gender and nation in the formation of the fin de siècle spanish and spanish colonial subject despite the wealth of research produced on gender social class race and national identity few studies have focused on how these categories interacted frequently operating simultaneously to reveal contexts in which dominated groups were dominating and vice versa such revelations call into question metanarratives about the exploitation of one group by another and bring to light interlocking systems of identity formation and consequently oppression that are difficult to disentangle the authors included here study this dynamic in a variety of genres and venues namely the essay the novel the short story theater and zarzuelas these essays cover canonical authors such as benito pérez galdós and emilia pardo bazán and understudied female authors such as rosario de acuña and belén sárraga the authors included here study this dynamic in a variety of genres and venues namely the essay the novel the short story theater and zarzuelas the volume builds on recent scholarship on race class gender and nation by focusing specifically on the intersections of these categories and by studying this dynamic in popular culture visual culture and in the works of both canonical and lesser known authors this edited volume provides race class gender theory and detailed guidelines strategies and rules for the methodology of the race class and gender approach it uses intersection theory to expose students to articles that employ the race class gender approach first published in 1983 gender class and education is a collection of papers that formed presentations at the westhill sociology of education conference in january 1982 and is the fifth such collection to emerge from the annual conference the conference theme race class and gender was not only chosen because of its topicality but also to provide a framework for debate between educational researchers and teachers the papers focus on the reproduction of gender relations through education and provide important insights into how this process works how it is resisted in schools and colleges and the possibilities for radical intervention this volume includes three teaching bibliographies on gender and education which were not presented at the conference but were compiled specially for the book originally published in 1992 this book places cypriot migration to britain within the context of new commonwealth migration as a whole and within developments in the field of racial and ethnic relations it provides an account of the economic and social position of cypriots in british society paying particular attention to a number of central theoretical and political debates relating to class ethnicity racism and gender the book argues that migrant groups have to be understood in terms of the interaction between the internal cultural and social differentiations within the group and the wider structural institutional and ideological processes of the country of migration gender divisions and the family are seen as central in understanding the forms of settlement and the economic and social placement of a migrant group this is the first handbook focussing on classical social theory it offers extensive discussions of debates arguments and discussions in classical theory and how they have informed contemporary sociological theory the book pushes against the conventional classical theory pedagogy which often focused on single theorists and their contributions and looks at isolating themes capturing the essence of the interest of classical theorists that seem to have relevance to modern research questions and theoretical traditions this book presents new approaches to thinking about theory in relationship to sociological methods gender race and class is a critical overview of these three well known dimensions of the social world the study of gender race and class as a combined topic has evolved over the years and this concise accessible volume shows why the subject continues to resonate both in and outside the academy examines recent scholarship to how one's gender with the added dimension of race and class can impact one's experiences in society probes deeper under the surface of different biases to see whether common elements of discrimination may also be at work includes a conceptual vocabulary that describes how gender race and class
