dominic ongwen was abducted in 1987 when he was 8 or 9 years old by the lord s resistance army ira in northern uganda and trafficked as a child soldier he made multiple unsuccessful attempts to escape and finally succeeded in late 2014 he turned himself into the international criminal court in 2015 and was prosecuted mr ongwen s defence was that he was not responsible for the crimes of the Ira based on his mental illnesses and duress stemming from his abduction and subsequent coercion and indoctrination under Joseph Kony within the Ira in February 2021 the ICC's Trial Chamber IX convicted Dominic Ongwen of 61 charges and two modes of liability and he was sentenced to 25 years incarceration. This work critiques the judicial racial and cultural biases and blindspots in the Ongwen judgment rendered by the ICC as related to the affirmative defences of mental disease or defect and duress and to sentencing from the perspective of the author who served as a defence counsel in the case.

This book examines the trade in nonhuman animals of endangered wild species. Wildlife trafficking is, after loss of habitat, the biggest threat to many animal species and biodiversity. This book draws on extensive empirical data from Norway to highlight the parallel legal and illegal markets, the motivation of traders, animal victimization, the weaknesses of existing regulatory frameworks and the difficulties of legal enforcement. As a long-time signatory of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora and a rich consumer country, Norway provides the perfect case for investigating the consequences of legalising or banning wildlife trade. The work applies a green, non-speciesist theoretical perspective to analyse empirical data covering approximately 350 cases, as well as qualitative interviews with law enforcement agencies and confiscation reports from customs. The book will be an essential resource for researchers and academics in green criminology, global criminology, environmental law and environmental studies. It will also be of value to professionals working in wildlife and animal welfare policies and enforcement, such as governmental and non-governmental organizations.

The voices of those experiencing life in the long term are often not heard. This collection of essays and personal stories from the people most impacted by long-term incarceration in Stateville Prison brings light to the crisis of mass incarceration and the human cost of excessive sentencing. Compelling, moving narratives from those most affected by the prison industrial complex make a compelling case that death by incarceration is cruel and unusual punishment implemented in the 1990s and 2000s. Harsh sentencing policies commonly labeled 'tough on crime' became a bipartisan political agenda. These policies had real impacts on families and communities, particularly as they caused the removal of many non-white and poor individuals from cities like Chicago. The long term brings into the light what has previously been hidden: a counter-narrative to the 'tough on crime' agenda and an urgent plea for a more humane criminal justice system. The book is a critical contribution to the current debate around challenging the mass incarceration and ending mandatory sentencing, especially for non-violent the international crimes tribunal in bangladesh was established in 2010 with the aim of bringing to trial perpetrators of crimes committed during the liberation war in 1971 through which the country seceded from pakistan the international crimes tribunal is a domestic tribunal based on the international crimes tribunals act from 1973 and the rules of procedure enacted by the tribunal itself the initiation of these trials almost 40 years after the war entails several challenges the publication examines to what extent the tribunal's legal framework as well as its jurisprudence comply with international standards as established in international treaties customary international law and in the jurisprudence of international criminal law to this end the substantive law and its interpretation as well as the procedural standards applied at these trials are examined thoroughly at the same time the analysis takes into account the political environment surrounding the tribunal's work and assesses its impact on the country's process of coming to terms with the past
