mixing rigorous social theory with concrete analysis reading and writing disability differently unpacks the marginality of disabled people by addressing how the meaning of our bodily existence is configured in everyday literate society tanya titchkosky begins by illustrating how news media and policy texts reveal dominant western ways of constituting the meaning of people and the meaning of problems as they relate to our understandings of the embodied self her goal is to configure disability as something more than a problem and beyond simply a positive or a negative and to treat texts on disability as potential sites to examine neo liberal culture titchkosky holds that through an exploration of the potential behind limited representations of disability we can relate to disability as a meaningful form of resistance to the restricted normative order of contemporary embodiment incorporating a textual analysis of ordinary depictions of disability this innovative study promises to represent embodied differences in new ways and alter our imaginative relations to the politics of the body disability and the politics of education an international reader is a rich resource that deals comprehensively with the many aspects of the complex topic of disability studies in education for nearly two decades global attention has been given to education as a human right through global initiatives such as education for all efa and the salamanca statement yet according to unesco reaching the goals of efa remains one of the most daunting challenges facing the global community today millions of the world s disabled children cannot obtain a basic childhood education particularly in countries with limited resources even in the wealthiest countries many disabled children and youth are educationally segregated from the nondisabled particularly if they are labeled with significant cognitive impairment international agencies such as the united nations and the world bank have generated funds for educational development but unfortunately these funds are administered with the assumption that west is best thereby urging developing countries to mimic educational policies in the united states and the united kingdom in order to prove their aid worthiness this mcdonaldization of education reproduces the labeling resource allocation and social dynamics long criticized in disability studies the authors in this volume explore these subjects and other complexities of disability and the politics of education in doing so they demonstrate the importance and usefulness of international perspectives and comparative approaches
