this novel described by the san francisco chronicle book review as nothing short of miraculous is the story of zebra wong a chinese girl whose pragmatic mind conflicts with her passionate heart lion head her classmate whose penchant for romantic intrigue belies his political ambitions and katherine the seductive american with the red lipstick and the wild laugh who teaches them english and other foreign concepts individualism sensuality the beatles in katherine s classroom repression and rebellion meet head on and the consequences are both tragic and liberating from the author of the international bestseller empress orchid comes the stirring erotically charged story of the woman known as the white boned demon the ambitious wife of chairman mao whose actions led to the death of millions in the cultural revolution from the young unwanted daughter of a concubine defiant in her refusal to have her feet bound to the wayward beautiful actress on the stages of shanghai to the ruthless charismatic partner of the great revolutionary leader mao zedong anchee min moves seamlessly from the intimately personal to the broad sweep of world history in this fascinating portrait of an extraordinary woman driven by ambition betrayal and a desperate need to be loved finely nuanced and always ambiguous min penetrates the myth surrounding madame mao with passion and sensitivity to paint a surprising picture of one of history s most vilified women rich with compressed drama and all the lyrical poetry of great opera becoming madame mao is a startling and moving achievement this book is about history and morality in the twentieth century it is about the psychology which made possible hiroshima the nazi genocide the gulag the chinese cultural revolution pol pot s cambodia rwanda bosnia and many other atrocities in modern technological war victims are distant and responsibility is fragmented the scientists making the atomic bomb thought that they were only providing a weapon how it was used was to be the responsibility of society the people who dropped the bomb were only obeying orders the machinery of the political decision taking was so complex that no one among the politicians was unambiguously responsible no one thought of themselves as causing the horrors of hiroshima jonathan glover examines tribalism how in rwanda and in the former yugoslavia people who once lived together became trapped into mutual fear and hatred he investigates how in stalin s russia mao s china and in cambodia systems of belief made atrocities possible the analysis of nazism explores the emotionally powerful combination of tribalism and belief which enabled people to commit acts otherwise unimaginable drawing on accounts of participants victims and observers jonathan glover shows that different atrocities have common patterns which suggest weak points in our psychology the resulting picture is used as a guide for the ethics we should create if we hope to overcome them the message is not one of pessimism or despair only by looking closely at the monsters inside us can we undertake the project of caging and taming them
