Jean Baptiste du Bos' Critical Reflections on Poetry and Painting first published in French in 1719 is one of the seminal works of modern aesthetics. du Bos rejected the seventeenth-century view that works of art are assessed by reason instead; he believed audience members have sentiments in response to artworks. Their sentiments are fainter versions of those they would feel in response to actually seeing what the work of art imitates. du Bos was influenced by John Locke's empiricism and in turn had a major impact on virtually every major eighteenth-century contributor to philosophy of art, including Voltaire, Montesquieu, Diderot, Rousseau, Herder, Lessing, Mendelssohn, Kames, Gerard, and Hume. This is the first modern annotated and scholarly edition of the Critical Reflections in any language.

This book draws attention to the pervasive artistic rivalry between Elizabethan poetry and gardens in order to illustrate the benefits of a trans media approach to the literary culture of the period. In its blending of textual studies with discussions of specific historical patches of earth, the poem and the garden demonstrates how the fashions that drove poetic invention were as likely to be influenced by a popular print convention or a particular garden experience as they were by the formal genres of the classical poets. By moving beyond a strictly verbal approach in its analysis of creative imitation, this volume offers new ways of appreciating the kinds of comparative and competitive methods that shaped early modern poetics. Noting shared patterns both conceptual and material in these two areas not only helps explain the persistence of botanical metaphors in sixteenth-century books of poetry but also offers a new perspective on the types of contrastive illusions that distinguish the Elizabethan aesthetic with its interdisciplinary approach. The poem and the garden is of interest to all students and scholars who study early modern poetics, book history, and garden studies.

One of the virtues of good poetry is the fact that it irritates the mediocre. Theodore Roethke was one of the most famous and outspoken poets and poetry teachers this country has ever known. In this volume of selected prose, Roethke articulates his commitments to imaginative possibilities, offers tender advice to young writers, and zings darts at stuffed shirts, lightweights, and fools. Art is our defense against hysteria and death. With the assistance of Roethke's widow, this volume has been edited to include the finest selections from out-of-print collections of prose and journal entries focused on the making and teaching of poetry. On Poetry and Craft will be prized in the classroom and outrageously. Roethke quotes will once again pepper our conversations. You must believe a poem is a holy thing, a good poem. That is, Theodore Roethke was of an illustrious generation of poets which included Sexton, Plath, Lowell, Berryman, and like them, he received nearly every major award in poetry, including the Pulitzer Prize and twice the National Book Award. In spite of his fame, he remained a legendary teacher known for the care and attention he gave to his students. Poets such as James Wright, Carolyn Kizer, Tess Gallagher, and Richard Hugo. Roethke died on August 1, 1963, while swimming in a friend's pool, but before I'm reduced to an absolute pulp by my own ambivalence, I must say goodbye. The old lion perisheth, nymphs, I wish you the swoops of many fish. May your search for the abiding be forever furious on poetry and craft. I am overwhelmed by the beautiful disorder of poetry, the eternal virginity of words. The poem, even a short time after being written, seems no miracle unwritten. It seems something beyond the capacity of the gods. We can't escape what we are, and I'm afraid many of my notions about verse I haven't too many have been conditioned by the fact that for nearly 25 years I've been trying to teach the young something about the nature of verse by writing it and that with very little formal knowledge of the subject or previous instruction so it's going
