meat and dairy production and consumption are in crisis globally 70 billion farm animals are used for food production every year it is well accepted that livestock production is a major contributor to greenhouse gas emissions the food and agriculture organization of the united nations fao predicts a rough doubling of meat and milk consumption in the first half of the 21st century with particularly rapid growth occurring in the developing economies of asia what will this mean for the health and wellbeing of those animals of the people who consume ever larger quantities of animal products and for the health of the planet itself the new edition of this powerful and challenging book explores the impacts of the global growth in the production and consumption of meat and dairy including cultural and health factors and the implications of the likely intensification of farming for both small scale producers and for animals several chapters explore the related environmental issues from resource use of water cereals and soya to the impact of livestock production on global warming and issues concerning biodiversity land use and the impacts of different farming systems on the environment a final group of chapters addresses ethical and policy implications for the future of food and livestock production and consumption since the first edition published in 2010 all chapters have been updated three original chapters re written and six new chapters added with additional coverage of dietary effects of milk and meat antibiotics in animal production and the economic political and ethical dimensions of meat consumption the overall message is clearly that we must eat less meat to help secure a more sustainable and equitable world this open access book aims to emphasize the potential for japan europe and indo pacific countries including the us to respond to shared domestic and international challenges on finding joint ways to uphold and develop the liberal international order lio in the asian pacific region and the world it explores how these countries and the region the eu can work together to promote solidarity and cooperation to advance democratic standards and rules based norms globally the us understands the lio in a political sense and centers its focus on democracy aiming to build a coalition of democracies opposed to china and russia which represent a kind of authoritarian axis the us aims both to defend the lio and respond to the china challenge and to build a coalition of countries that will do both in contrast european countries aim at defending the rules based order a term preferred because they fear that the concept of the lio might alienate or antagonize non democratic countries they face a dilemma between working with china to reform the lio or in seeking to defend it from china excluding china germany and france differ regarding whether to play a passive or active role in the indo pacific the former choosing to preserve peace and stability for continued exports and until recently doing little to contribute to security its views echo those of the asean countries which are unable or unwilling to take an active role in protecting the lio on the contrary france along with the uk actively carries out presence operations in the indo pacific rather than upholding us dominance france supports a multipolar order that will also reduce china s influence in the region with france acting as a balancing power and offering an alternative to the choice between china and the united states japan and india show interest in european views with the former leaning more toward its allies the us and aukus and the latter seeing europe less as an alternative to the status quo and more as a complement of quad this book concludes that the us needs to build coalitions rather than forcing allies and neighbors to choose sides while japan asian countries and europeans should more actively reform the lio
