traveling around england is in many senses a journey back in time on all sides and sometimes even under the road or footpath itself there are fragments of the ancient past alongside the clutter of the modern world medieval villages castles ancient churches and roman villas are commonplace and take us back to the time of christ and far older yet equally abundant are the barrows hillforts stone circles camps standing stones trackways and other relics of prehistoric times now thanks to these three archaeologists each a specialist in one of the three periods covered by the guide prehistoric roman and medieval readers have the chance to not only explore but to understand in context these fascinating sites and ruins in addition to reporting on such well known sites as stonehenge and hadrian s wall and cities such as london and york which themselves offer a wealth of archaeological remains the book also covers smaller lesser known sites throughout the country an introductory section provides background to the monuments and a reference section provides definitions further reading and information about museum collections finally there are 200 photographs plans and maps that depict and describe these ancient remains in detail the perfect way to experience the amazing countryside of county durham is on two feet whatever your age ability or energy level this new collection of 100 walks of up to 12 miles will help you explore the best of this breathtakingly beautiful coastal landscape the crowood walking guides give detailed and accurate route descriptions of the 100 walks full colour mapping is included which is sourced from the ordnance survey details of where to park and where to eat and drink are included and also places of interest to see along the way septimius severus was rome s black emperor born in the blistering heat of a north african spring in leptis magna ad 145 he died in the freezing cold of a northern british winter in york in ad 211 a giant of an emperor whose career can be counted in superlatives severus was in power at the height of rome s might he led the largest army to ever campaign in britain comprising 50 000 men part of a roman military establishment which peaked at 33 legions under his rule born into the richest family in the richest part of the roman empire severus monumentalised his rule across the empire he visited and often fought in every region where he did he left a mighty legacy in the built environment for example in rome where much of the forum romanum and most of the imperial palaces are severan in north africa his hometown of leptis magna is all severan as are the roman cities at the atlas mountains in london the land walls that still define the city s square mile were delineated under his rule visitors to the undercroft at york minster can stand where he died septimius severus was one of the greatest warrior emperors a hard man who almost died in battle several times and whose attitude is reflected in his deathbed advice to two sons be of one mind with your family enrich the soldiers and despise the rest drawing on a global range of case studies this edited collection is the first to explore the production use and consumption of visual imagery as an integral part of heritage weaving together complex understandings of the visual from a wide range of disciplines the book provides a comprehensive overview of the theoretical and methodological tools necessary for understanding visual imagery within its cultural context a look at the history and folklore of this iconic river in north east england the research reported in this monograph follows on directly from the findings that were reported in bar 492 surveying roman military landscapes across northern britain in which among many other discoveries the author recognised that the courses of both roman dere street and hadrian s wall had been underpinned by frameworks of long distance alignments the author seeks to examine why how and when such long distance alignments may have been laid out consideration is then given to the processes by which some of these alignments seem subsequently to have been adopted to help set out the courses of roman roads these processes are shown at times to have been far from straightforward and this appears to offer an explanation for many of the minor divergences that roman roads as built take from such alignments in practice the courses of four well known roman roads in northern england are then examined in detail to diagnose the processes by which they are likely to have been planned and laid out these roads are the western main road from manchester northwards through the lune gorge the maiden way the network of cross country roads from kirkham to aldborough and the devil s causeway distributor website description 17 july 2015
