traditional theatre semiotics promoted a scientific approach to theatre studies albeit viewing semiotics as the unique discipline of research theatre sciences a plea for a multidisciplinary approach to theatre studies suggests instead a multi disciplinary approach including the following theoretical disciplines narratology mythology pragmatics ethics theatre irony theory of genres aesthetics semiotics theory of non verbal figures of speech rhetoric psychoanalysis reception theory history and sociology with semiotics being only one among equals these disciplines are presented from the perspective of their possible contributions to a sound methodology of theatre texts analysis traditional theatre semiotics moreover holds the view that the actual performance on stage is the genuine text of theatre instead of the play script despite this paradigmatic shift however this viewpoint has failed to produce commendable analyses of such texts the alternative presupposition put forward in this volume entails a series of novel perceptions of the theatre text and its possible impact on the experiencing spectator whose role in reading interpreting and experiencing the theatre text is not less crucial than that of the text itself this view presupposes that the theatre text is a description of a fictional world generated by the theatre medium the author also contests the age old view that a theatre fictional text reflects a simple narrative structure and suggests instead a complexity that consists of seven layers personified mythical praxical naive ironic modal and aesthetic with each one of them re structuring the previous layer professor rozik also presents and describes a semiotic layer that lends communicative capacity to the description of a fictional world and two additional metaphoric and rhetoric layers which structure the theatre experience the underlying purpose is to illustrate the application of the aforementioned disciplines to these fictional layers and eventually their joint application to entire theatre fictional texts organisation of the book reflects the structure of a university course offers a theory and methodology of performance analysis as an alternative to traditional play analysis this book carries an underlying theme that theatre performance is a descriptive text generated by the theatre medium and that the process of generating meaning takes place in the actual encounter between a theatre performance and the spectator

i have read the play evelyn i keep reading the play but the play keeps on changing five neurotic actors one stressed stage manager a crazed director an invisible playwright and an escaped monkey are desperately rehearsing the world s worst play which keeps being rewritten and every rewrite is more hilariously terrible than the one before and although it really shouldn t somehow the show manages to go on stop the play is a fist biting funny send up of everything bad about bad theatre a roar out loud gem of side splitting brilliance grumpy gay critic one type of analysis cannot fit every play nor does one method of interpretation suit every theatre artist or collaborative team this is the first text to combine traditional and non traditional models giving students a range of tools with which to approach different kinds of performance
