is war a gender issue although focused on the south african perspective there is a wider more universal and surprising link between war and gender identities this book demonstrates and explores through the actual experiences and understandings of a range of south africans during one of the most volatile periods in the country's history how men and women have different access to power and resources and how those differences are mobilized for war

why given that most people have a strong impulse for self preservation do individuals fight wars jacklyn cock believes that the answer lies in gender relations in particular the way in which femininity and masculinity are defined and the power of the military in society nothing throws the question of gender into sharper relief than does war war does not challenge women to prove that they are women whereas combat is seen so often as the proof of manliness in colonels and cadres jacklyn cock explores the link between war and gender in a specific society and period south africa in the 1980s she documents interviews with victims of the violence resisters and militarists colonels and soldiers in the south african defence force sadf and cadres in the anc s umkhonto we sizwe mk their fascinating and sometimes horrifying reports provide unsettling insights into the nature of war and its effects on individuals and society revealing that although the sadf and mk reflect all the myriad differences between a conventional and a guerrilla army women in both armies have been the subject of similar processes of incorporation and exclusion as provocative and well written as her book maids and madams jacklyn cock s colonels and cadres is gripping reading both for the haunting personal accounts and the clearly articulated analysis of the issues involved
