research paper undergraduate from the year 2011 in the subject business economics investment and finance grade 87 university of sunderland course applied research methods for business and management language english abstract throughout the last decades mergers and acquisitions m a are achieving increasing importance in the corporate world there are many motives such as to increase the market power and competitive advantage to reduce dependence on suppliers to gain fast access to new market etc why managers adopting an acquisitions strategy nevertheless many m a s have been unsuccessful in the past due to incompetent managers poor ethics inadequate analysis prior the deal and diversification away from the core business of the company therefore a careful industry target company and product portfolio analysis must be made before the deal the literature provides different frameworks and analytical tools that can be used in the M&A process in order to avoid typical risks however because of the uniqueness of each M&A deal it is important to gain further insights in these transactions in order to provide an appropriate guideline on how to select an optimal M&A target corporate restructuring acquisitions alliances and divestment is a visible form of corporate strategy for example firm investments in buying and selling assets exceed the gross domestic product of the majority of nations most research in this area examines acquisitions but informing practice is limited by examining acquisitions in isolation or using a narrow focus for example a lingering problem is that average acquisition performance is consistently around zero suggesting a need to identify practically relevant relationships in addressing this need research on three fundamental questions is covered 1 how do acquisitions relate to other corporate strategy options 2 what helps to predict acquisition performance and 3 what are persistent acquisition research issues the first question is intended to overcome a research limitation that acquisitions are often examined independent of other corporate strategies including internal development alliances and divestment the second question addresses novel relationships associated with the primary focus of acquisition research in examining what drives acquisition performance the third question reflects on the underlying complexity of the phenomenon that makes it a challenge to identify what drives acquisition performance overall the intent of presenting ideas on these fundamental questions is to illustrate promising areas for future research this book presents the latest state of knowledge on the topic and will be of interest to researchers academics and advanced students in the fields of strategic management international business and organizational studies
