the orange prize winning author of the secret river delivers brilliant fiction and illuminating personal history in the finale of her australian trilogy the independent with the secret river kate grenville dug into her own family s history to create an unflinching tale of frontier violence in early australia she continued her bold exploration of australia s beginnings in the lieutenant now sarah thornhill brings this acclaimed trilogy to an emotionally explosive conclusion sarah is the youngest daughter of william thornhill an ex convict from london unknown to sarah her father has built his fortune on the blood of aboriginal people with a fine stone house and plenty of money thornhill has reinvented himself teaching his daughter to never look back or ask about the past instead sarah fixes her eyes on handsome jack langland whom she s loved since she was a child their romance seems idyllic but the ugly secret in sarah s family is poised to ambush them both driven by the captivating voice of the illiterate sarah at once headstrong sympathetic curious and refreshingly honest this is an unforgettable portrait of a passionate woman caught up in a historical moment that s left an indelible mark on the present uncommon wealths in postcolonial fiction engages urgently with wealth testing current assumptions of inequality in order to push beyond reductive contemporary readings of the gaping abyss between rich and poor shifting away from longstanding debates in postcolonial criticism focused on poverty and abjection the book marshals fresh perspectives on material spiritual and cultural prosperity as found in the literatures of formerly colonized spaces the chapters follow the money to illuminate postcolonial fiction s awareness of the ambiguities of wealth acquired under colonial capitalism and transmuted in contemporary neoliberalism they weigh idealistic projections of individual and collective wellbeing against the stark realities of capital accumulation and excessive consumption they remain alert to the polysemy suggested by uncommon wealths both registering the imperial economic urge to ensure common wealth and referencing the unconventional or non western the unusual even fictitious and contrasting privately coveted and exclusively owned wealth with visions of a shared karsan dargawalla heir to the shrine of a mysterious medieval sufi begins to tell the story of his family and the destroyed shrine in the aftermath of the violence that gripped western india in 2002 his tale begins in the 1960s and young karsan wishes above all else to be ordinary and when he is accepted to harvard he can't resist the opportunity to escape his hereditary obligation after a bitter quarrel with his father that leads him to abdicate his successorship he marries and has a son in canada but after tragedy strikes in canada and india he is drawn back after thirty years to see if anything is left for him a story of grand historical sweep and intricate personal drama a stunning evocation of the physical and emotional landscape of a man caught between the ancient and the modern between legacy and discovery between the most daunting filial obligation and the most undeniable personal yearning the assassin's song is a heartbreaking ballad of a life irrevocably changed cultural memory involves a community's shared memories the selection of which is based on current political and social needs a past that is significant to a national group is re imagined by generating new meanings that replace earlier certainties and fixed symbols or myths this creates literary syncretisms with moments of undecidability the analysis in this book draws on renate lachmann's theory of intertextuality to show how novels that blur boundaries without standing in for history are prone to intervene in cultural memory a brief overview of aboriginal politics between the 1920s and the 1990s in relation to several novels provides historical and political background to the links between and problems associated with cultural memory testimony trauma and stolen generations narratives which are discussed in relation to sally morgan's My Place and doris pilkington's Rabbit Proof Fence there follows an analysis of novels that respond to the history of contact between aboriginal and settler australians including kate grenville's historical novels The Secret River The Lieutenant and Sarah Thornhill as examples of a traditional approach david malouf's Remembering Babylon charts how language and naming defined our early national narrative that excluded aboriginal people intertextuality is explored via the relation between thea astley's The Multiple Effects of Rainshadow chloe hooper's The Tall Man and the Royal Commission into Aboriginal Deaths in Custody kim scott's Benang from the Heart and That Deadman Dance and alexis wright's Carpentaria reflect a number of lachmann's concepts syncretism dialogism polyphony menippean satire and the carnivalesque suggested is a new way of reading novels that respond to australia's violent past beyond trauma studies and postcolonial theory to re imagine a different syncretic past from multiple perspectives kate grenville's Return to the Territory of the Secret River is historical fiction turned inside out a stunning sleight of hand by one of australia's most celebrated writers what if elizabeth macarthur wife of the notorious john macarthur wool baron in the earliest days of sydney had written a candid secret memoir and what if novelist kate grenville had miraculously found and published it that's the starting point for A Room Made of Leaves a dance of possibilities between worlds real and invented marriage to a ruthless bully the impulses of her heart the search for power in a society that gave women none grenville's elizabeth macarthur manages her complicated life with spirit and passion cunning and wit her memoir lets us hear what a seemingly demure woman of history might really have thought at the heart of A Room Made of Leaves is one of the most toxic issues of our own age the seductive appeal of false stories this book may be set in the past but it's just as much about the present where secrets and lies have the power to shape reality
