this study aims to sensitise all those concerned with africa s development including african leaders policy makers and scholars to the potential revolution that has transformed eastern europe and its relations with the west since 1989 the study is concerned that african governments should take advantage of any trade and other opportunities that may open up as well as take the necessary steps to contain any adverse consequences in a context where africa is not responding as fast or effectively as other regions to the accelerating intergration of the world economy this book is valuable for its up to date hard data on the current state of european african economic relations its detailed analysis of the economic issues raised by the single european market and its policy recommendations this book offers a holistic and comprehensive assessment of the european union s eu relations with africa focusing on their historical political socio economic and cultural dimensions in the high imperial period from the nineteenth century some in europe advocated the idea of eurafriquea a formula for putting africa s resources at the disposal of europe s industries after tracing europe s historical attempts to remodel relations following african independence from the 1960s and europe s own quest for unity the book examines the current strategic dimensions of the relationship most especially contributors examine the place of africa in the eu s need for global partnerships key topics discussed include trade and investment security and governance migration and identity and the historical legacy on the current relationship the volume closely analyses the key european players in africa france britain portugal and the nordics within the context of the eu finally it examines europe s controversial immigration policies and complex relations with the maghreb and mediterranean as well as perceptions of past and current european identity the study concludes that africa and europe still appear not to have escaped fully the burdens of history and examines the feasibility of elaborating and practising in future an afro europaa a new relationship defined by genuine equality partnership and mutual self interest between both continents and one that finally sheds the baggage of the eurafriquea past the history of african european relations it is now over 100 years since the berlin conference of 1884 which started the scramble for africa whereby the various european powers carved up the african continent between themselves during the last century the relationship between africa and europe has changed dramatically from a colonial to a post colonial relationship with more recently new patterns emerging as the communist bloc has developed increasingly strong links with some countries and as the eec as an institution has got more involved first published in 1986 this book explores how the relationship between africa and europe has changed over the last hundred years assesses the current state of relations and discusses how the relationship may develop in the future the relationships between africa and europe are of high strategic importance this volume studies the ongoing dynamics between the two continents by adopting a pluralist understanding of international relations which encompasses non state actors as well as states going beyond pure intergovernmentalism this focus of this book is on activists business people religious believers local politicians as well as transnational networks and by hybrid coalitions such plurality of socio economic and political interactions underpinning the relationship between africa and europe is underexamined and yet of great importance the text identifies new patterns of cooperation and recurrent obstacles in the african european multistakeholder dynamics thus opening the way for a more accurate understanding of the future relationship between africa and europe this book brings african and european reflections together on an equal standing in order to achieve a true dialogue among civilizations this book is aimed at all those who are interested in african european relationships including students and researchers as well as activists business people civil servant and functionaries at local and national level this wide reaching volume shows how africa developed before the coming of the europeans up to the 15th century and shows africa s contribution to european capitalist development in the pre colonial period colonialism is then shown as a system for underdeveloping africa a year and a half after the new strategy with africa proposed by the european commission was made public the new partnership between the two continents is still being defined the impact of the covid 19 pandemic with africa s first economic recession in 25 years and a sharp rise in poverty and debt has created new challenges for the two continents agenda highlighting new gaps to address on the way forward with the european union african union summit scheduled for february 2022 the definition of the new partnership is once again gathering momentum while both sides are still trying to define common positions will these two natural partners be able to tackle the most urgent challenges and turn them into opportunities for collaboration and engagement what are the priority issues and which ones are potentially most divisive africa europe cooperation and digital transformation explores the opportunities and challenges for cooperation between africa and europe in the digital sphere digitalisation and digital technologies are not only essential for building competitive and dynamic economies they transform societies pose immense challenges for policymakers and increasingly play a pivotal role in global power relations digital transformations have had catalytic effects on african and european governance economies and societies and will continue to do so the covid 19 pandemic has already accelerated the penetration of digital tools all over the globe and is likely to be perceived as a critical juncture in how and to what purpose the world accepts and uses new and emerging technologies this book offers a holistic analysis of how africa and europe can manage and harness digital transformation as partners in a globalised world the authors shed light on issues ranging from economic growth youth employment and gender to regulatory frameworks business environments entrepreneurship and interest driven power politics they add much needed perspectives to the debates that shape the two continents digital transformation and innovation environments this book will interest practitioners working in the areas of innovation digital technologies and digital entrepreneurship as well as students and scholars of international relations it will also be relevant for policymakers regulators decision makers and leaders in africa and europe the open access version of this book available at taylorfrancis.com has been made available under a creative commons attribution non commercial no derivatives 4.0 license africa in europe in two volumes meticulously documents europe's african presence from antiquity to the present it incorporates findings from areas of study as diverse as physical anthropology linguistics social history social theory international relations migrational studies and globalization in contrast to most other works focusing on eurafrican relationships that largely revolve around atlantic and trans atlantic developments since the age of global exploration this work has a much broader perspective which takes account of human evolution the history of religion judaic studies byzantine studies the history of islam and western intellectual history including social theory while the issue of racism in its variant manifestations receives thorough treatment africa in europe is also about human connections across fluid boundaries that are ancient as well as those that date to the age of exploration the age of revolution and continue until the present hence it brings new clarity to our understanding of such processes as acculturation and assimilation while deepening our understanding of interrelationships among racism violence and social identities this work is full of new insights fresh interpretations and highly nuanced analyses relevant to our thinking about territoriality citizenship migration and frontiers in a world that is increasingly globalized the author moves across boundaries of time and space in ways that result in an encyclopedic work that is an integrated and programmatic whole as well as one in which each chapter is a complete module of scholarship that is self contained this handbook provides a comprehensive overview of the changing dynamics in the relationship between the african continent and the eu provided by leading experts in the field structured into five parts the handbook provides an incisive look at the past present and potential futures of eu africa relations the cutting edge chapters cover themes like multilateralism development assistance institutions gender equality and science and technology among others thoroughly researched this book provides original reflections from a diversity of conceptual and theoretical perspectives from experts in africa europe and beyond the handbook thus offers rich and comprehensive analyses of contemporary global politics as manifested in africa and europe the routledge handbook of eu africa relations will be an essential reference for scholars students researchers policy makers and practitioners interested and working in a range of fields within the sub disciplines of african and eu studies european politics and international studies the routledge handbook of eu africa relations is part of the mini series europe in the world handbooks examining eu regional relations and established by professor wei shen europe with its highly integrated international networks belongs to the most secure areas of the world in the matter of localised regional conflicts on the opposite end there is the poorest continent namely africa with the least developed international structure and with the highest number of armed conflicts in the world the aim of this book is to examine the historic development of security structures on these two diverse continents as well as their similarities and differences the first part of the text focuses on the historic development of europe and africa and their interrelations the second part describes the european and african security structures the last part covers the similarities and differences between the two security systems the text shows the economic and political interdependence of european states that was mainly established through the foundation of several supranational institutions after the second world war in order to ensure sustainable peace and economic prosperity by contrast africa still has serious security problems and the development of international acting institutions that may help to support stability and peace is still in its infancy the contemporary development in europe will bring the continent even closer together and further boost consolidation among european nations due to the absence of a functioning multilateral structure and a basic network of collective security in africa states there will have to rely on regional arrangements to balance existing power differences nevertheless in order to obtain economic growth and promote general welfare a network of multilateral operating institutions is unavoidable in europe africa is often called the forgotten continent the collapse of states violent conflicts and natural disasters shape the public perception of africa in europe while the political perspectives tend to be grossly neglected this book wants to challenge this image in the eyes of many people through a profound analysis of main aspects of african european relations e g economics migration hiv aids in particular it will be discussed what can be done to improve the relations between both continents and to develop a constructive and genuine cooperation the book is based on the presentations and discussions of a congress of the jesuit scribani network this book studies the afro european and euro african past and present from an interdisciplinary and comparative perspective it addresses africa as a whole eschewing historical divisions between north and sub saharan africa its content exemplifies the extent to which the histories of europe and africa are intertwined and the way european sources are usually privileged in the writing of historical accounts of cross cultural encounters using post decolonial studies the authors point of view is based on anthropology history ethnomusicology and film and literary studies the authors argue that mutual experiences and imaginations have affected how cultural heritage and legacy are conceived and thought of as well as memories and sociopolitical experiences the aim is to establish and encourage a broader knowledge of africa europe and europe africa encounters incorporating case studies of euro african and afro european legacies the final goal is to favour a more relational point of view by comparing euro african and afro european realities after having imposed on africa the model of the bureaucratic and centralized national state europe today can represent a model of integration and must offer a partnership relationship with africa to start a green new deal with the allocation of financial resources but also technology transfers and infrastructure creation historically scientists and experts have played a prominent role in shaping the relationship between europe and africa starting with missionary intellectuals in the seventeenth century european savants have engaged in the study of nature and society in africa this book poses questions about the changing role of european science and expert knowledge from early colonial times to post colonial times how did science shape understanding of africa in europe and how was scientific knowledge shaped adapted and redefined in african contexts

largely revolve around atlantic and trans atlantic developments since the age of global exploration this work has a much broader perspective which takes account of human evolution the history of religion judaic studies byzantine studies the history of islam and western intellectual history including social theory while the issue of racism in its variant manifestations receives thorough treatment african in europe is also about human connections across fluid boundaries that are ancient as well as those that date to the age of exploration the age of revolution and continue until the present hence it brings new clarity to our understanding of such processes as acculturation and assimilation while deepening our understanding of interrelationships among racism violence and social identities this work is full of new insights fresh interpretations and highly nuanced analyses relevant to our thinking about territoriality citizenship migration and frontiers in a world that is increasingly globalized the author moves across boundaries of time and space in ways that result in an encyclopedic work that is an integrated and programmatic whole as well as one in which each chapter is a complete module of scholarship that is self contained this book examines africa europe relationships and intra africa relationships vis à vis migration it analyses the african integration project that is being used to effectively manage migration within africa and across its recs and harnessing it for development the book presents debates related to the eu s hardening and securitisation of its external border against migrants from africa it shows that migration actually challenges africa european relations which is discussed as an important theme in this book authors in this book volume investigate several issues ranging from conundrums relating to migration between africa and europe to migration within africa but also in relation to borders and boundaries its bearing on regional and continental integration and the significance of this in terms of relations between africa and europe this book volume brings into conversation issues relating to the governance of migration for development social cohesion and regional integration hybrid eyes reflections of an african in europe is a moving and insightful account of the experiences of a young sierra leonean graduate who achieves his dream of going to europe for further studies as he encounters people and institutions his idealistic expectations of german society soon give way to the harsh realities of discrimination and other disadvantages foreigners especially black africans face in their host country but not all germans discriminate against blacks and blame the problems of their country on foreigners hybrid eyes is compelling reading for everyone it is a story that young people who aspire to study in europe should read to help them prepare for adjustment to the demands of their prospective foreign environment it is also a sound warning to those who wish to explore the greener pastures of europe that the grass is not as green as they think or are made to believe written in simple straightforward english and neatly structured in interwoven episodes hybrid eyes is also highly recommended for schools the number of african migrants attempting to enter europe has increased within europe north african migrants are being accused of increased involvement in islamic fundamentalism and terrorist activities after attacks on madrid and london such terrorist attacks have become an urgent security concern for the european union forcing the eu to make migration a security policy this volume examines the extent to which the eu is threatened by patterns of african crisis alongside africa s peace security and development initiatives the contributors analyze current migration flows from africa to europe and the challenges and prospects of a comprehensive eu strategy for africa intended for undergraduates graduates and lecturers the volume is ideal for courses that discuss the impact of african political developments on international politics
