it is inevitable that the prevailing ideology of a nation whether overtly or covertly will predetermine a mono cultural language and literacy syllabus unless multicultural activists and ethnic minorities make their voices heard through the public media the purpose of literacy is not just to find a job literacy is the vital key to an intelligent participation in self government by multicultural democracy david myers think of the benefits that could arise if westerners began to make an effort to learn from the rich pool of knowledge stored in the languages of australia and the pacific instead of ignoring them or destroying them at a time when western technology society and philosophy are in an almost permanent state of crisis solutions from outside philosophical systems may be particularly important peter muhlhausler this volume explores the different ways that ethnic and religious diversity is conceptualized and debated in south and east asia in the first few decades following decolonization talk of multiculturalism and pluralism was discouraged as states attempted to consolidate themselves as unitary and homogenizing nation states today however it is widely recognized that states in the region must come to terms with the enduring reality of ethnic and religious cleavages and find new ways of accommodating and respecting diversity as a result many countries are now debating policies to accommodate minorities including recognition of indigenous rights minority language rights consociational power sharing regional autonomy and multination federalism this is often described as a key ingredient in any process of democratization in the region one manifestation of this new ethos is the growing rhetoric of multiculturalism often imported from the west and indeed western models of minority rights have had an influence in many asian countries often promoted by international organizations however asian societies also have their own traditions of peaceful coexistence amongst linguistic and religious groups all of the major ethical and religious traditions in the region from confucian and buddhist to islamic and hindu have their own conceptions of tolerance and their own recipes for sustaining unity amidst diversity these traditions continue to shape people s beliefs and practices in the region even the distinctive conception of marxism developed in the region provides an influential perspective on these issues not found in the west the rhetoric of multiculturalism may be ubiquitous around the world but it is being used to express quite different ideas and norms using both case studies and thematic essays this volume examines the pre colonial traditions colonial legacies and post colonial ideologies that influence contemporary debates on multiculturalism in the region it explores the areas of convergence and divergence between these different perspectives and the extent to which they provide viable frameworks for managing ethnic and religious diversity in the region

this book explores race and multiculturalism in malaysia and singapore from a range of different disciplinary perspectives showing how race and multiculturalism are represented how multiculturalism works out in practice and how attitudes towards race and multiculturalism and multicultural practices have developed over time going beyond existing studies which concentrate on the politics and public aspects of multiculturalism this book burrows deeper into the cultural underpinnings of multicultural politics relating the subject to the theoretical angles of cultural studies and post colonial theory and discussing a range of empirical examples drawn from extensive original research covering diverse practices such as films weblogs music subcultures art policy discourse textbooks novels poetry which demonstrate overall how the identity politics of race and intercultural interaction are being shaped today it concentrates on two key asian countries particularly noted for their relatively successful record in managing ethnic differences at a time when many fast developing asian countries increasingly have to come to terms with cultural pluralism and migrant diversity this book interrogates politics and practices of multiculturalism and multicultural education in contexts where liberal and critical multiculturalism is under pressure it examines and interrogates perspectives on multiculturalism and the political and social to diversity in societies in asia and europe it is set against a background of increasing right wing radicalism and pervasive authoritarianism in different parts of the world these ideologies not only undermine multiculturalism but the potential of democracy itself the book includes chapters from leading scholars on multiculturalism interculturalism and diversity around the world it examines the challenges to multicultural diversity in the global north and makes a distinctive contribution by addressing this issue in the global south societies of asia including myanmar china and pakistan as such this book opens up international debate about multiculturalism by providing exchanges rarely heard across borders multiculturalism is now seen by many of its critics as the source of intercultural and social tensions fostering communal segregation and social conflicts while the cultural diversity of contemporary societies has to be acknowledged as an empirical and demographic fact whether multiculturalism as a policy offers an optimal conduit for intercultural understanding and social harmony has become increasingly a matter of polarised public debate this book examines the contested philosophical foundations of multiculturalism and its often controversial applications in the context of migrant societies it also explores the current theoretical debates about the extent to which multiculturalism and related conceptual constructs can account for the various ethical challenges and policy dilemmas surrounding the management of cultural diversity in our contemporary societies the authors consider common conceptual and empirical features from a transnational perspective through analysis of the case studies of australia canada columbia germany new zealand the united kingdom and uruguay this book will be of interest to students and scholars of political science comparative politics international studies multiculturalism migration and political sociology contemporary dilemmas back to the intertwined legacies of imperialism and liberalism in so doing it demonstrates that multiculturalism has implications that stretch far beyond its current formulations in public and academic discourse on multiculturalism

what does it mean to bring asia into conversation with current literature on everyday multiculturalism this book focuses on the empirical theoretical and methodological considerations of using an everyday multiculturalism approach to explore the ordinary ways people live together in difference in the asian region while also drawing attention to increasing trans asian mobilities the chapters in this collection encompass inter disciplinary research undertaken in australia hong kong malaysia singapore and south korea that explores some core aspects of everyday multiculturalism as it plays out in and across asia these include an increase in intraregional movements and especially labour mobility which demands regard for the experiences of migrants from burma china nepal the philippines and india negotiations of cultural diversity in nations where a multi ethnic citizenry is formally recognised through predominantly pluralist models and or where national belonging is highly racialized and intercultural contestation against in some cases the backdrop of a newly emergent multicultural policy environment the book challenges and reinvigorates discussions around the relative transferability of an everyday multiculturalism framework to asia including concepts such as super diversity conviviality and everyday racism and the importance of close attention to how people navigate differences and commonalities in local and trans local contexts this book will be of interest to academics and researchers studying migration multiculturalism ethnic and racial studies and to advanced students of sociology political science and public policy it was originally published as a special issue of ethnic and racial studies across the west something called multiculturalism is in crisis regarded as the failed experiment of liberal elites commentators and politicians compete to denounce its corrosive legacies parallel communities threatening social cohesion enemies within cultivated by irresponsible cultural relativism mediaeval practices subverting national ways of life and universal values this important new book challenges this familiar narrative of the rise and fall of multiculturalism by challenging the existence of a coherent era of multiculturalism in the first place the authors argue that what we are witnessing is not so much a rejection of multiculturalism as a projection of neoliberal anxieties onto the social realities of lived multiculture nested in an established post racial consensus new forms of racism draw powerfully on liberalism and questions of values and unsettle received ideas about racism and the far right in europe in combining theory with a reading of recent controversies concerning headscarves cartoons minarets and burkas lentin and titley trace a transnational crisis that travels and is made to travel and where rejecting multiculturalism is central to laundering increasingly acceptable forms of racism this book answers such fundamental questions as what is multiculturalism how did it originate and how did it become a basis for the australian government s ethnic affairs policy researched from primary evidence much of it made available to the author exclusivelymdash it is an essential and solid foundation for future research and policy work in this field multiculturalism continues to stir emotions and excite passionate public debate this work presents new accurate ideologically neutral historically based definitions of multiculturalism it also provides accurate and analytically useful definitions and explanations of assimilationism and integrationism thus establishing a valuable framework for analysis and debate this edited volume focuses on how multiculturalism as statecraft has had both intended and unintended consequences on singapore s various ethnic communities the contributing authors address and update contemporary issues and developments in the practice of multiculturalism in singapore by interfacing the practice of multiculturalism over two critical periods the colonial and the global the coverage of the first period examines the colonial origins and conception of multiculturalism and the post colonial application of multiculturalism as a project of the nation and its consequences for the tamil muslim ceylon tamil and malay communities the content on the second period addresses immigration in the context of globalization with the arrival of new immigrants from south and east asia who pose a challenge to the concept and practice of multiculturalism in singapore for both periods the contributors examine how the old migrants have attempted to come to terms with living in a multicultural society that has been constructed in the image of the state and how the new migrants will reshape that society in the course of their ongoing politics of identity this book is about multiculturalism broadly defined as the recognition respect and accommodation of cultural differences teo proposes a framework of multicultural denizenship that includes group specific rights and intercultural dialogue by problematising three issues a the unacknowledged misrecognition of non citizens within the scholarship of multiculturalism b uncritical treatment of citizens and non citizens as binary categories and c problematic parcelling of group specific rights with citizenship rights drawing on the case of singapore as an illustrative example where temporary labour migrants are culturally stereotyped socioeconomically disenfranchised and denied access to rights accorded only to citizens teo argues that understandings of multiculturalism need to be expanded and adjusted to include a fluidity of identities spectrum of rights and shared experiences of marginalisation among citizens and non citizens civic multiculturalism in singapore will be of interest to students and scholars of multiculturalism critical citizenship studies migration studies political
