building the nation draws from foreign policy reports and interviews with u s military officers to investigate recent u s led efforts to nation build in iraq and afghanistan heather selma gregg argues that efforts to nation build in both countries focused more on what should be called state building or how to establish a government rule of law security forces and a viable economy considerably less attention was paid to what might truly be called nation building the process of developing a sense of shared identity purpose and destiny among a population within a state s borders and popular support for the state and its government according to gregg efforts to stabilize states in the modern world require two key factors largely overlooked in iraq and afghanistan popular involvement in the process of rebuilding the state that gives the population ownership of the process and its results and efforts to foster and strengthen national unity gregg offers a hypothetical look at how the united states and its allies could have used a population centric approach to build viable states in iraq and afghanistan focusing on initiatives that would have given the population buy in and agency moving forward gregg proposes a six step program for state and nation building in the twenty first century stressing that these efforts are as much about how state building is done as they are about specific goals or programs redefining eu membership examines the issue of membership within the european union eu today by focusing on differentiation in and outside the eu the treaty on european union unequivocally declares that the contracting parties are the member states of the eu however a closer examination casts some doubt of the unitary status of member states or at least suggests that the concept requires nuancing whilst diversity and to some extent differentiation have been part and parcel of the european integration process since its inception redefining eu membership proposes that considering several developments a new reflection on membership within the eu and on differentiation in and outside the eu is required the volume s contributions are organized around four aspects of the tensions faced by the concept of a unitary and formal eu membership first an examination of key policy areas which have already witnessed various forms of differentiated integration second an analysis of special statuses within the eu third important examples of non member states in which eu law is applied with and without their participation in the eu s decision making process and fourth the situation of states under accession or secession procedures which obliges them to accept eu norms and policies even prior to after formal membership these analyses are complemented by a reflection on the concept of membership in itself in a context in which eu enlargement appears likely the provided analysis reflects on the need to expand and introduce several kinds of membership to the eu in the future
