in relationship thinking n j enfield outlines a framework for analyzing social interaction and its linguistic cultural and cognitive underpinnings by focusing on human relationships this is a naturalistic approach to human sociality grounded in the systematic study of real time data from social interaction in everyday life many of the illustrative examples and analyses in the book are a result of the author s long term field work in laos enfield promotes an interdisciplinary approach to studying language culture and mind building on simple but powerful semiotic principles and concentrating on three points of conceptual focus the first is human agency the combination of flexibility and accountability which defines our possibilities for social action and relationships and which makes the fission and fusion of social units possible the second is enchrony the timescale of conversation in which our social relationships are primarily enacted the third is human sociality a range of human propensities for social interaction and enduring social relations grounded in collective commitment to shared norms enfield s approach cuts through common dichotomies such as cognitive versus behaviorist or public versus private arguing instead that these are indispensable sides of single phenomena the result is a set of conceptual tools for analyzing real time social interaction and linking it with enduring relationships and their social contexts the book shows that even or perhaps especially the most mundane social interactions yield rich insights into language culture and mind this collection offers a multifaceted view of the life research and impact of emanuel a schegloff the co originator with harvey sacks and gail jefferson of conversation analysis or ca and its leading contemporary authority the first section introduces schegloff s life and work and using a series of interviews with him provides a concise comprehensive and accessible introduction to the field s major aims and achievements next many of the world s leading researchers from various disciplines including communication linguistics psycholinguistics linguistic anthropology and sociology build on schegloff's foundational research analyzing encounters from everyday and institutional settings conducted in english german korean mandarin and russian to explicate how conversation and other conduct in interaction are organized the final section of the book includes reflections on schegloff's contributions by some of his major interlocutors and schegloff's response to them

this book revisits the arguments by which harvey sacks and harold garfinkel opposed the widespread attempt in the social sciences to construct disciplinary theories and methods in place of common sense knowledge of human action and proposed instead an alternative that would investigate the organised methods of natural language use and common sense reasoning that constitute social orders arguments that led to the establishment and proliferation of ethnomethodology and conversation analysis as the very constructive analysis that they opposed has begun to be incorporated into influential lines of research in ethnomethodology and conversation analysis the authors return to the founding insights of the field and reiterate the importance of garfinkel and sacks original and controversial proposals for an alternate sociology of practical action and practical reasoning showing how constructive analysis has become entrenched in ethnomethodology and conversation analysis and arguing for a need to re boot these approaches this volume constitutes a call for a renewal of the radical alternative proposed by garfinkel and sacks this volume explores a rich variety of linkages between grammar and social interaction
