what and when is british romanticism if seen not in island isolation but cosmopolitan integration with european romantic literature history and culture the essays here range from poetry and the novel to science writing philosophy visual art opera and melodrama from france and germany to italy and bosnia whilst french romances of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries have long enjoyed a privileged place in the literary history of france romances from the later middle ages have been largely neglected by modern scholars despite their central role in the chivalric culture of the day in particular although this genre has been seen as providing a forum within which ideas about masculine and feminine roles were debated and prescribed little work has been done on the gender ideology of texts from the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries this study seeks to fill this gap in the scholarship by analysing how the views of gender found in earlier romances were reassessed and reshaped in the texts produced in the moralising intellectual environment of the later medieval period in order to explore these topics this book discusses fifteen historico realist prose romances written in the century from 1390 many of which were commissioned at the court of burgundy it addresses key issues in recent studies of gender in medieval culture including the construction of chivalric masculinity the representation of adolescent desire and the social and sexual roles of husbands and wives in addition to offering close readings of these texts it shows how the romances of the period were informed by ideas about gender which circulated in contemporary works such as manuals of chivalry moral treatises and marriage sermons it thus aims not only to provide the first in depth study of this little known area of french literary history but also to question the critical consensus on the role of gender in medieval romance that has arisen from an exclusive focus on earlier works in the genre
