professionals drawing from a wide range of literature and traditions from freire's critical pedagogy to the neuroscience of mindfulness these engaging essays have much to offer both seasoned and new social work educators while creating an integrative and realistic conceptual home for them the authors discuss the uses of theatre the arts ritual mindfulness critical dialogue yoga and many other methods that upend the traditional social work classroom these approaches are used at the undergraduate and graduate levels in a range of courses including policy theory and practice the auto ethnographical nature of many of the essays will invite educators to reflect on their own pedagogies as they consider the rewards and risks of going beyond the cognitive and engaging the whole person

this book has two main theses first for the biblical christian doctrine of sin the root of the human problem is hardness of heart the corruption of the core self of the seat of understanding and will on the other hand for an important strand of greek tragedy the root of human harm doing is the nonculpable blindness and anxiety of finitude that despite the initial nonculpability lead to evil and suffering the hardened heart shows that these two different interpretations of human existence are amenable to a degree of synthesis that leads to this conclusion hardness of heart and our ordinary finitude together collude to cause sin in its fullness the second thesis of this volume is that exegetical studies disclose a deconstructive strand in certain biblical texts that represents the finite world that god created as a source of distress and harm doing in something like the tragic sense this subdominant deconstructive position challenges the dominant biblical vision in which the creation came forth from god's creative word as good without qualification in this highly original book victor kestenbaum calls into question the oft repeated assumption that john dewey's pragmatism has no place for the transcendent kestenbaum demonstrates that far from ignoring the transcendent ideal dewey's works on education ethics art and religion are in fact shaped by the tension between the natural and the transcendent kestenbaum argues that to dewey the pragmatic struggle for ideal meaning occurs at the frontier of the visible and the invisible the tangible and the intangible penetrating analyses of dewey's early and later writings as well as comparisons with the works of hans georg gadamer michael oakeshott and wallace stevens shed new light on why dewey regarded the human being's relationship to the ideal as the most far reaching question of philosophy for dewey the pragmatic struggle for the good life required a willingness to surrender the actual experienced good for a possible ideal good dewey's pragmatism helps us to understand the place of the transcendent ideal in a world of action and practice during the 1960s and 1970s the russian conceptual artist ilya kabakov was a galvanizing figure in moscow's underground art community ultimately gaining international prominence as the leader of a band of artists known as the moscow conceptual circle throughout this time he created texts that he would distribute among his friends and by the late 1990s his written production amounted to hundreds of pages devoted to themes that range from the cosmism of pre revolutionary russian modernism to the philosophical implications of moscow s garbage kabakov s handmade booklets were typed out on paper then stapled or sewn together using rough butcher paper for their covers among these writings are faux socialist realist verses theoretical explorations art historical analyses accompaniments to installation projects and transcripts of dialogues between the artist and literary theorists critics journalists and other artists this volume offers for the first time in english the most significant texts written by kabakov the writings have been expressly selected for this english language volume and there exists no equivalent work in any language
