this volume intends to re establish social gerontology as a discipline that has pragmatic links to policy and practice collectively the chapters enrich public debates about the moral cultural and economic questions surrounding aging thereby ameliorating the problems associated with aging societies this volume is uniquely cross cultural theory driven and cross disciplinary it fills a gap in the gerontological scholarship of the global south that is predominantly descriptive and empirical based on original research this volume examines in particular the sociological question of inequality and its intersection with age gender health family and social relations in the process the studies herein highlight the unique historical institutional and social systems that govern the subjective experience of aging in diverse contexts globally specifically societies in transition including india lebanon nigeria japan china israel and in europe are studied while connecting the micro social experience of aging loneliness wellbeing discrimination relationships and resilience with larger temporal and political contexts this exercise generates intellectual capital that reformulates links between aging research and policy in innovative ways overall the volume echoes the global scientific commitment to understand the socio cultural process of aging in transitional societies and utilizes rich opportunities for cross fertilization of ideas disciplines and methods to advance the gerontological promise of critical inquiry training and practice the aim of this volume is to revitalise the debate about the concepts of time implicit in the study of aging the many problems related to aging and the aged put an enormous pressure on the gerontological community to come up with practical applications and solutions in considering research findings we must keep in mind the basic assumptions that shape and influence even the most obvious statements about aging in this multidisciplinary volume the contributors take on the important task of exploring real issues concerning temporal concepts and approaches to aging and the concepts of time that are used in thinking about aging determine to a large extent the way aging is approached most studies of aging still use a chronological approach to define populations for research purposes that is to determine which aged should be studied and to establish how people's characteristics social economic health and so forth change as a function of age this approach may lead to an accumulation of data but does not in itself lead to explanatory knowledge the step from chronological time to chronological age should be taken cautiously if we want to consider aging processes seriously especially because chronological age is widely used in contemporary societies as a basis for regulating all kinds of processes with many consequences for individuals the arguments presented here do not deny the finitude of human life nor do they deny that aging can be observed in any individual if we compare the characteristics of that person over a relatively long period the question is how to approach these themes to get a better understanding to achieve this we need to understand the specific significance and relativity of chronological time and uncover unfounded deductions about time in relation to aging this book will be of interest to students and professors of the social sciences humanities and aging including the methodology of aging studies professionals working in the field of aging including sociologists psychologists and biologists
