a no holds barred account of what it was really like to cover some of the most dangerous and extraordinary moments in recent history if being a war correspondent can be addictive this book might just leave you hooked from brushes with landmines to ukrainian hotdogs lisette s celebrated storytelling vividly brings to life the powerful stories behind her reports mike mcroberts i woke up every day expecting to fall asleep in a different country a blur of breaking news airports body armour border crossings and bomb shelters and wads of foreign cash we were charging on adrenaline and there was no place we wouldn t have gone okay except russia but only because the president s not my biggest fan i didn t get paid danger money i would have done it all for free a world away from the waikato farm she grew up on lisette reymer suddenly found herself reporting from one of the most dangerous places on earth and she kept going back driven by a desire to tell people's stories wherever they are the right stories not the easy ones. Lisette's time as Europe correspondent coincided with some of the biggest global headlines in decades from inside Ukraine to the Queen's death the war between Israel and Gaza Donald Trump's indictment the King's coronation the region's deadliest natural disaster in a century the Tokyo Olympics the hunger crisis in Ethiopia and a revolving door of UK prime ministers she has seen and done more in three years than many journalists do in a lifetime this is a funny brutally honest account of what it was really like to cover some of the most perilous and extraordinary moments in recent history take your seat it's in the front row

This book presents essays that reflect the dialogue and the spirit of conversation of the 1990 International Federation for the Teaching of English (IfTE) conference in Auckland, New Zealand. The book begins with some of the impressions of the IfTE conference held by the classroom teachers, school administrators, writers, and scholars who attended it. Language diversity in the classroom is the focus of several essays in the second part of the book. Each essay in the second part of the book is followed by a response. The pairing of essays continues in the third section of the book where issues such as who controls curricula and who sets the standards for curricula are addressed. The third part of the book also discusses national curriculum movements in New Zealand and the United Kingdom. English as a second language pedagogies and international underpinnings of the whole language movement. The initial essay in each set is a response to a paper presented at the conference; the second is the original presenter's reply to the author of the first essay. The fourth part of the book presents essays about the history and future of IfTE conferences looking forward especially to the 1995 conference to be held in New York City.

This is a simple and straightforward book on the painter Don Binney who has been working with images of birds and landscapes since the early 1960s. Though he is a well-known and popular artist, nothing has previously been written on him and this attractive and useful book will be of considerable interest.
