presenting a comprehensive portrayal of the reading of chinese and buddhist philosophy in early twentieth century german thought chinese and buddhist philosophy in early twentieth century german thought examines the implications of these readings for contemporary issues in comparative and intercultural philosophy through a series of case studies from the late 19th century and early 20th century eric nelson focuses on the reception and uses of confucianism daoism and buddhism in german philosophy covering figures as diverse as buber heidegger and misch he argues that the growing intertextuality between traditions cannot be appropriately interpreted through notions of exclusive identities closed horizons or unitary traditions providing an account of the context motivations and hermeneutical strategies of early twentieth century european thinkers interpretation of asian philosophy nelson also throws new light on the question of the relation between heidegger and asian philosophy reflecting the growing interest in the possibility of intercultural and global philosophy chinese and buddhist philosophy in early twentieth century german thought opens up the possibility of a more inclusive intercultural conception of philosophy

based on the author's thesis at Leiden University 1971

The Buddha Confucius Jesus and Muhammad each founded a system of thought which in its own way has shaped the lives and thinking of countless generations across the world. This unique volume presents four self-contained studies of the founders of the world's greatest religious traditions originally written for the Past Masters series. These authoritative studies provide a unique guide to some of the most influential ideas in human history. Each of the contributors explores the distinctive features of the particular religious tradition and reveals why it has had such a profound and lasting influence on the way people think today. Founders of Faith provides new insights into the different ways in which men and women in both the East and West have sought to make sense of some of the most intractable problems of human existence.

What does it mean to call someone the founder of a religion? How have debates about figures such as Jesus, Muhammad, and Confucius served as proxies for broader cultural, theological, or political questions? The contributors to Varieties of Religious Invention survey the landscape shaped by these questions within the world's major religious traditions.
