a book on legal philosophy necessarily focuses attention on law in addition to this focus an introduction to an african legal philosophy focuses attention on philosophy the link between law and philosophy is brought into relief which is done through an african context an attempt is made to spell out what is african about legal philosophy without being cut off of african legal philosophy from non african legal philosophy the book draws attention to the view that a basic component of african legal philosophy consists of an investigation of what it is to be an african and because an african is a human being among other human beings the investigation is about what it is to be a human being ubuntuism is an african derived word that captures this mode of being human moreover because human beings are cultural beings african cultural context guides the investigation inescapably it is claimed that every legal philosophy is embedded in a culture african legal philosophy is not an exception it is deeply rooted in african culture a culture that is today shaped in part by a european colonialist culture one feature that will strike one as one reads the book is that the book approaches african legal philosophy as a means of decolonization of african culture african legal philosophy can accomplish this intelligently and effectively if it is itself decolonized in doing this it contrasts sharply with mainstream western legal philosophy

health planning is a critical component when responding to the health needs of low and middle income countries characterised by particularly stringent resource constraints the major communicable diseases such as aids tb and malaria often appear in parallel with growing non communicable diseases including heart disease and diabetes and yet resources are often less than the levels recommended by the world health organisation for basic health care the new edition of this well respected text explains the importance of health planning in both developing regions such as africa and those in transition such as central and eastern europe it stresses the importance of understanding the national and international context in which planning occurs and provides an up to date analysis of the major current policy issues including health reforms separate chapters are dedicated to the distinct issues of finance for health care and humanresource planning the various techniques used at each stage of the planning process are explained starting with the situational analysis and then looking in turn at priority setting option appraisal programming implementation monitoring and evaluation the book ends by examining the challengesfacing planners in the 21st century particularly in the light of growing globalisation a major theme of the book is the need to recognise and reconcile the inevitable tension that lies between value judgements and rational decision making as such in addition to introducing techniques such as costing and economic appraisal it also outlines techniques such as stakeholder analysis for understanding the relative attitudes and power of different groups in planning decisions each chapter includes a comprehensive bibliography including key websites a summary and exercises to help the reader practise techniques and better understand the content the book argues that all health professionals and community groups should be involved in the planning process for it to be effective and will therefore appeal to anyone involved in planning
