canada and germany are among the largest contributors to the international mission in afghanistan with troops in different parts of the country fulfilling different roles canada s higher ratio of combat to development work is reflected in a higher rate of casualties canadians have sometimes joined in criticisms of germany and other european allies for their unwillingness to take on riskier military tasks in afghanistan s southern and eastern provinces some germans in turn have chided canada for stressing war fighting at the expense of approaches more centred on development this canadian german dialogue reflects a larger debate both operational and existential within nato concerning afghanistan and the future of the alliance this collection of essays by leading german and canadian experts assesses the present state and future prospects of the afghanistan mission both to advance the dialogue and to suggest better approaches to the policy questions that continue to confront the alliance contributors include michael
