the treaty of rome makes no mention of the mediterranean basin as such includes not a single provision for the defining of specific relations with that region as a whole there are only as a hang over from the french and italian colonialist past certain declarations in the appendices regard ing a possible association of tunis morocco libya with the new under taking and of course there is article 113 prescribing at the end of the community s transition period the common trade policy plus the article 238 giving blanket authorisation for association agreements these legal prescriptions were duly implemented in the association agreements with greece 1961 and turkey 1963 and have supplied the basis for bilateral instruments in respect of other mediterranean lands ad hoc pragmatic arrangements in the circumstances the community could scarcely have proceeded otherwise yet the outlines of a european economic policy with regard to the countries of the mediterranean basin were there from the beginning limited however over the years by the internal development of the community itself one is reminded in this connection of sundry invocations by european and mediterranean personalities and members of the european commission and specifically of a memorandum presented by italy to the council of ministers in 1964
