this volume is a selection of papers presented at the fourth international workshop on artificial intelligence and statistics held in january 1993 these biennial workshops have succeeded in bringing together researchers from artificial intelligence and from statistics to discuss problems of mutual interest the exchange has broadened research in both fields and has strongly encouraged interdisciplinary work the theme of the 1993 ai and statistics workshop was selecting models from data the papers in this volume attest to the diversity of approaches to model selection and to the ubiquity of the problem both statistics and artificial intelligence have independently developed approaches to model selection and the corresponding algorithms to implement them but as these papers make clear there is a high degree of overlap between the different approaches in particular there is agreement that the fundamental problem is the avoidance of overfitting i.e. where a model fits the given data very closely but is a poor predictor for new data in other words the model has partly fitted the noise in the original data a major empirical and theoretical work that has the potential for becoming a classic in the field sheldon goldman author of the federal courts as a political system this provocative theoretical approach should be of great interest to scholars and students of the federal bench eliott e slotnick editor of judicial politics the authors of this guide have thoroughly researched law firm hiring practices and its many shifts in order to produce this book which covers practical searching and screening strategies smart hiring practices and constructive ideas that can be incorporated into recruitment procedures
