the world appears to be globalising economically technologically and even to a halting extent politically this process of globalisation raises the possibility of an international legal framework a possibility which has gained pressing relevance in the wake of the recent global economic crisis but for any international legal framework to exist normative agreement between countries with very different political economic cultural and legal traditions becomes necessary this work explores the possibility of such a normative agreement through the prism of national constitutional norms since 1945 more than a hundred countries have adopted constitutional texts which incorporate at least in part a bill of rights these texts reveal significant similarities the canadian charter of rights and freedoms for instance had a marked influence on the drafting of the bill of rights for south africa new zealand and hong kong as well as the basic law of israel similarly the drafts of eastern european constitutions reflect significant borrowing from older texts the essays in this book examine the depth of these similarities in particular the extent to which textual borrowings point to the development of foundational values in these different national legal systems and the extent of the similarities or differences between these values and the priorities accorded to them from these national studies the work analyses the rise of constitutionalism since the second world war and charts the possibility of a consensus on values which might plausibly underpin an effective and legitimate international legal order the united states and china are the two most important states in the international system and are crucial to the evolution of global order both recognize each other as vital players in a range of issues of global significance including the use of force macroeconomic policy nonproliferation of nuclear weapons climate change and financial regulation in this book rosemary foot and andrew walter both experts in the fields of international relations and the east asian region explore the relationship of the two countries to these global order issues since 1945 they ask whether the behaviour of each country is consistent with global order norms and which domestic and international factors shape this behaviour they investigate how the bilateral relationship of the united states and china influences the stances that each country takes this is a sophisticated analysis that adroitly engages the historical theoretical and policy literature
