seminars by professor windy dryden see the man live and in action to find out more and to book your place go to cityminds com it is a fairly well established cliché that while supervision is recognised as a crucial component of good practice in psychotherapy and counselling there is correspondingly little written about it this book is a good step in redressing the balance it is a practical didactic and generic view of how to do supervision giving a fairly comprehensive account of 30 of the formal skills that all supervisors probably use whether consciously or not the book discusses each of the skills giving examples as well as practical suggestions as to how to approach difficult issues directed principally at counsellors it is a book to dip into when faced with a panic about a specific issue therapeutic communities supervision is a professional and ethical necessity for all counsellors providing them with consultative and supportive aid while protecting clients from potential abuse yet relatively little has been written on the subject this volume aims to redress that balance encouraging yet sensitive to the difficult issues that frequently arise in supervision the book contains practical suggestions plus useful appendices to help practising and trainee supervisors develop and enhance the skills they need to be successful in their work the authors cover such key areas as creating a supervisory alliance fostering the supervisory relationship the use of tape recording highlighting supervisees strengths and weaknesses and protecting the client and counsellor this book is focused on relational processes in supervision for counselling and psychotherapy the aim is first to introduce a relational theoretical stance then to apply that stance to the process of supervision and finally to offer practitioners immediately accessible resources for relational supervision within a relational perspective supervisor and supervisees are viewed as partners who co construct the supervisory process unlike other approaches to supervision where the emphasis is on specific techniques and strategies for supervision the relational orientation of this book invites supervisor and supervisee into different understandings of the supervisory interaction this orientation directs our attention to the importance of co creating the therapeutic relation alliance with special attention to the wellbeing of the the supervisee and the supervisor supervision from this perspective is focused on what participants are making together rather than on the individual abilities strengths and weaknesses of either the supervisor or the supervisee supervision is a prerequisite for all counsellors and for most psychotherapists yet until recently it has been assumed that any experienced counsellor or therapist could become a supervisor without any special expertise but the experience of those in supervision is sometimes of inadequate or even unhelpful work by their supervisors at the same time supervision is receiving considerable attention as a discipline in its own right with an expanding literature on the dynamics of the supervisory couple or the supervisory triad since the client is a central if absent presence more attention is also being paid to the technical skills required of the supervisor this book addresses those issues both from the perspective of the supervisee and the supervisor suggesting what supervisees might expect from good supervision as well as offering guidance to supervisors on how best to use to the full the opportunities offered by a therapeutic situation which has some similarities but also some radical differences from counselling and therapy itself the handbook of psychotherapy supervision also provides detailed coverage of the communicative and relational factors which influence the supervision process
