Like Conrad's Marlow whose tale of journeying into the heart of darkness gives us as much insight into one man's personality as it does into the mysteries of the dark world he explored so the anthropologist's record of another culture contains more than objective scientific data about his investigation embedded within it are clues to the personality of anthropology itself the attitudes approaches even prejudices that at any given stage in history are inextricable from the ideology of the anthropologist therefore the mirror he holds up to show us another culture can never be a perfect one his own professional attitude toward his subject as well as his choice of medium are factors that create cracks in the mirror of anthropology through which we believe we view the life of other cultures hence the concept of reflexivity and the striving to recognize how it warps in the portrayal of anthropological truth lie at the core of the twelve finely wrought essays collected in this volume wide ranging in geography as well as viewpoint they highlight various methods and media film ethnography text through which an anthropologist chooses to portray a culture and the various forms such as art theater and ritual through which a culture portrays itself recognizing the link between these two processes provides the key to cultural and methodological self awareness reflexivity is defined and clarified in the introduction and in three of the essays and the remaining nine essays evince the principle through fieldwork and startling case studies essays by jay ruby and eric michaelis shed new light on the enormous potential of film and video showing how a form generally thought to be nonscientific can in fact give fresh insight into the scientific premises underlying the discipline's methodology essays by barbara babcock and carol ann parssinen focus on the novel and ethnography examining existing works anthropologists as well as students of film art and theater will find that this intriguing work begins to redefine traditional distinctions between science and the arts and brings to light fresh resources that are utilized in the search for anthropological truth contributors richard schechner victor turner barbara myerhoff jay ruby eric michaelis dennis tedlock george marcus paul rabinow barbara babcock carol ann parssinen and dan rose this book examines the recent trend for re performance and how this impacts on the relationship between live performance and death focusing specifically on examples of performance art the text analyses the relationship between performance re performance and death comparing the process of re performance to the process of mourning and arguing that both of these are processes of adaptation and survival using a variety of case studies including performances by ron athey julie tolentino martin o brien sheree rose jo spence and hannah wilke the book explores performances which can be considered acts of re performance as well as performances which examine some of the critical concerns of re performance including notions of illness loss and death by drawing upon both philosophical and performance studies discourses the text takes a novel approach to the relationship between re performance mourning and death while mindfulness meditation has been used in clinical settings as an adjunctive treatment for substance use disorders for some time there has been limited empirical evidence to support this practice mindfulness related treatments and addiction recovery bridges this gap by reporting the findings of studies in which mindfulness practice has been combined with other behavioural treatments and or adapted to meet the needs of a variety of client populations in recovery therapies used as interventions in the described studies include mindfulness based stress reduction mbsr mindfulness based cognitive therapy mbct dialectical behavior therapy dbt acceptance and commitment therapy act mindfulness based relapse prevention mbrp and mindfulness based therapeutic community mbtc treatment the book offers a glimpse into the many ways in which mindfulness strategies have been applied to various facets of the recovery process including stress craving anxiety and other relapse related factors preliminary evidence while not conclusive suggests that mindfulness based therapies are effective safe satisfying to clients and that an individual at home mindfulness practice can be potentially sustained over time beyond the intervention duration this book was originally published as a special issue of substance abuse
