from the bestselling author of a history of god and the great transformation comes a balanced nuanced understanding of the role religion plays in human life and the trajectory of faith in modern times why has god become incredible why is it that atheists and theists alike now think and speak about god in a way that veers so profoundly from the thinking of our ancestors moving from the paleolithic age to the present karen armstrong details the lengths to which humankind has gone to experience a sacred reality that it called god brahman nirvana allah or dao she examines the diminished impulse toward religion in our own time when a significant number of people either want nothing to do with god or question the efficacy of faith with her trademark depth of knowledge and profound insight armstrong elucidates how the changing world has necessarily altered the importance of religion at both societal and individual levels and she makes a powerful convincing argument for structuring a faith that speaks to the needs of our dangerously polarized age churchgoing may be falling in the western world but intellectually at least christianity is experiencing something of a re birth in this text the author lays out in layman s terms the primary arguments for the existence and nature of god he considers the problem of evil and then sets out the various positive arguments in favour of god s existence the moral argument the cosmological argument the argument from design and then more personal arguments such as common consent authority and religious experience he concludes by providing a summaryof the kind of god to whom these arguments point here armstrong argues that atheism has rarely been a denial of the sacred itself but has nearly always rejected a particular conception of god she suggests that if we draw on the insights of the past we can build a faith that speaks to our needs this is a clear and original investigation of god s nature and existence first of all it considers two of god s traditional properties being all knowing and being all powerful it argues he cannot possess these properties but it argues this is in accord with him being worthy of worship secondly it introduces the notion of evil being overridden it argues he has to bring about other free living things and it is plausible they have to be liable to experience evil due to their conditions but it argues the evil in this world is overridden thirdly it considers the principal arguments for the claim he does not exist they refer to the evil in the world it argues they do not establish sufficient grounds for this claim finally it considers some well known arguments for the claim he exists it argues they face difficulties it sets out other arguments eg some arguments to increase any degree of belief one has that god can exist it includes a number of appendices god s sovereignty are there sufficient grounds for the claim that very probably god does not exist theodicy and some theodicies it covers as a whole the principal parts of the philosophy of religion it unifies these parts to a significant degree it proceeds regularly by way of formal and clear arguments it will be of interest to advanced students and specialists in philosophy religious studies and theology given its explanation of key terms its jargon free language its clarity and brevity it will be of interest to others too a logical case for god and creation first takes the reader through a logical look at whether it is reasonable to believe that the bible is true and that god exists then looking at the universe including the existence of billions of galaxies and trillions of stars the planets that make up the universe and our solar system the author argues it is not possible for the universe to have come about by accident or as a result of an accidental big bang then considering our marvelous bodies the massive number of other species on this earth the beauty of the flora and fauna and the tremendous resources available to us he demonstrates that it is not probable or possible for all that exists to have evolved over millions of years or come about without a design or a designer the author points out to say that we evolved is an insult to our god given human ability to reason and to our intellectual capacity to logically evaluate the truth finally considering the harmonious nature of the universe the author further demonstrates that it is not logical to believe that the trillions upon trillions of objects being propelled through space at such incredible speeds could have accidentally fallen into such a harmonious and orchestrated relationship to each other absent these objects having been purposely put into a predetermined perpetual path in our incredible universe by an intelligent designer logic would suggest that the universe would be in complete chaos without a design nick hawkes has written a book on science and christian faith that is attractive intelligent and accessible to general readers it shows clearly that christian faith and science are not opposed to each other but in need of each other this book will be of great interest not only to committed christians seeking to see how their biblical faith relates to contemporary science but also to all those searching for an authentic christian spirituality for the twenty first century denis edwards flinders university nick hawkes looks at arguments for and against the existence for god and comes to the conclusion that faith can no more dispense with science than science can dispense with god both complete one another he knows the terrain well and is able to explain complex ideas in ordinary language dr hawkes concludes by saying that christian theology rather than undermining science actually provides science with a solid ground of meaning on which to stand mark worthing tabor college adelaide this book should have a prominent position on the shelves of pastors church leaders teachers and anyone who is interested in proclaiming christianity in our secular society dr hawkes uses modern science to put forward a reasoned defense of orthodox christianity ken smith the university of queensland the prologue of the gospel of john identifies jesus christ as the eternal word or logos of the father who became flesh for the salvation of the world yet the world that christ saves is his world from the beginning for he is also the logos of creation the one through whom all things were made john 1 3 this divinely revealed claim has profound implications not only for theology but also for metaphysics whose relation to christian doctrine was undermined over the course of the twentieth century such that the christian faith has become an increasingly private affair rather than a credible account of reality and an invitation to participate more fully in it with christ the logos of creation john betz seeks to recover a christ centered analogical metaphysics and to establish the indispensability of such metaphysics for christian theology and the christian vision of reality in part i he dispels the fog of confusion about analogical metaphysics and addresses the ecumenical issues posed by karl barth s famous rejection of the analogia entis part ii demonstrates how analogical metaphysics helps to explain christian doctrine and sheds new light on the interrelationship between individual doctrines including trinitarian theology christology and soteriology and theological anthropology in part iii betz explores how this analogical perspective can aid in resolving a number of theological disputes including the metaphysical relationship between nature and grace and the issue of divine humility finally part iv outlines further directions toward a fully christological metaphysics that is proportionate both to the challenges of modern theology and the reality of our life in christ the logos can we know anything about god apart from the bible many protestant christians are suspicious of natural theology which claims that we can learn about god through revelation outside the bible how can we know anything about god apart from scripture in nature s case for god distinguished theologian john frame argues that christians are not forbidden from seeking to learn about god from his creation in fact the bible itself shows this to be possible in nine short and lucid chapters that include questions for discussion frame shows us what we can learn about god and how we relate to him from the world outside the bible if the heavens really do declare the glory of god as the psalmist claims it makes a huge difference for how we understand god and how we introduce him to those who don t yet know christ
