why do people work hard and take pride in what they do this book a philosophically minded enquiry into practical activity of many different kinds past and present is about what happens when people try to do a good job it asks us to think about the true meaning of skill in the skills society and argues that pure competition is a poor way to achieve quality work sennett suggests instead that there is a craftsman in every human being which can sometimes be enormously motivating and inspiring and can also in other circumstances make individuals obsessive and frustrated the craftsman shows how history has drawn fault lines between craftsman and artist maker and user technique and expression practice and theory and that individuals pride in their work as well as modern society in general suffers from these historical divisions but the past lives of crafts and craftsmen show us ways of working using tools acquiring skills thinking about materials which provide rewarding alternative ways for people to utilise their talents we need to recognise this if motivations are to be understood and lives made as fulfilling as possible an exploration of public performance in everyday life by the leading cultural and social thinker the performer explores the relations between performing in art particularly music politics and everyday experience it focuses on the bodily and physical dimensions of performing rather than on words richard sennett is particularly attuned to the ways in which the rituals of ordinary life are performances the book draws on history and sociology and more personally on the author's early career as a professional cellist as well as on his later work as a city planner and social thinker it traces the evolution of performing spaces in the city the emergence of actors musicians and dancers as independent artists the inequality between performer and spectator the uneasy relations between artistic creation and social and religious ritual the uses and abuses of acting by politicians the janus faced art of performing is both destructive and civilizing this is the first in a trilogy of books on the fundamental dna of human expression performing narrating and imaging
