in 2019 Roy, a retired librarian living alone in dwindling bushland on the outskirts of Melbourne, is lured out of his shell by his neighbours: two migrant Chinese families who run a motel and restaurant with other neighbours and guests they get together regularly for Friday Chinese banquets; retiring for after dinner ghost stories to an old Presbyterian church among the gums behind the restaurant; the temple of ordinary terrors he records the passage of the year in a journal that includes notes from his intercultural story telling group. He finds that mortals and even some part human part goblin beings like the Japanese tengu inhabit a zone somewhere between the terrors of the supernatural world depicted in literature and art and the ordinary terrors of the natural real world. In the process Roy finds a special friend and ultimately exorcises the ghost of his own loneliness which he has been inclined to idealise as solitude.

This study demonstrates the relevance of an integrational linguistic perspective to language learning by shunning realist and structuralist theories, commitment to the perspective of the language user and adherence to a semiology in which signs are the situated products of interactants' interpretive behavior. This method radically reconceptualizes language learning and teaching.

First published in 1994, this in-depth and long-term study presents an ethnography which is comprised of personal narratives of victims of domestic abuse and homelessness. Drawing on these stories, the book addresses a number of issues surrounding the provision of services for homeless women and domestic abuse victims, including the effectiveness of assistance programs and laws and potential solutions to the problems of both domestic abuse and homelessness. This book will be of interest to those studying social work, health care and mental health, sociology and women's studies.
