screening the nonhuman draws connections between how animals represented on screen translate into reality in doing so the book demonstrates that consuming media is not a neutral act but rather a political one the images humans consume have real world consequences for how animals are treated as actors as pets and in nature the contributors propose that altering the representations of animals can change the way humans relate to non humans our hope is for humans to generate more ethical relationships with non humans ultimately mediating reality both in terms of fiction and non fiction to achieve this end film television advertisements and social media are analyzed through an intersectional lens but the book doesn't stop here each author creates counter representational strategies that promise to unweave the assumptions that have led to the mistreatment of humans and non humans alike this book aims to show how film can increase awareness of the plight of farmed animals without exploiting them much has been written on the rights of animals be they in the wild or circuses hunted experimented on used for entertainment or slaughtered and consumed however there has been little that has examined in any detail the filming of farmed animals and nothing on a declaration of rights for such animals thus leaving them in a limbo of neglect stephen marcus finn offers a manifesto on how to foster the rights of farmed animals in filming and sets out to rectify this lacuna this full color storybook relays the narrative highlights of the film the hobbit an unexpected journey with photos and descriptive text and makes a wonderful visual souvenir for younger readers
