darkness isn't the opposite of light it is simply its absence what was radiating from the book was the light that lies on the far side of darkness the light fantastic the discworld is in danger heading towards a seemingly inevitable collision with a malevolent red star its magic fading it needs a hero and fast what it doesn't need is rincewind an inept and cowardly wizard who is still recovering from the trauma of falling off the edge of the world or twoflower the well meaning tourist whose luggage has a mind and legs of its own which is a shame because that's all there is his spectacular inventiveness makes the discworld series one of the perennial joys of modern fiction mail on sunday incredibly funny compulsively readable the times the light fantastic is the second book in the wizards series but you can read the discworld novels in any order a funeral celebrant from the shetland islands reveals how celebrating mortality and creating a personalized space for grief enriches lives and gives meaning to death part self help part memoir this is a funny and thoughtful journey into the world of undertakers and death cafes of pilgrimages and taboos after a close encounter with death tom morton realized he needed a change of pace and perspective he decided to become the only independent funeral celebrant on the remote shetland islands an unusual new profession that would lead him on an extraordinary journey into the world of the dead in a vivid narrative that reveals the fascinating realm of the unspoken from extraordinary undertakers and death cafes to pilgrimages and taboos tom quickly learns that death and speaking for the dead requires you to think on your feet and often take a magpie approach to faith and philosophy from humanism to hymns theravada buddhism to star wars theology he discovers the importance of ritual humor and the empowering act of trying to find words for something beyond language itself this is an accessible and thought provoking guide to celebrating mortality when grief must be an inevitable part of life tom shows how we can mourn together in a way that feels appropriate to the life of the one who has passed on and ultimately cultivate a healthy attitude to our own eventual demise the first study to look at the intersection of the discourse of the anthropocene within the two highly influential storytelling modes of fantasy and myth this book shows the need for stories that articulate visions of a biocentric ecological civilization fantasy and myth have long been humanity's most advanced technologies for collective dreaming today they are helping us adopt a biocentric lens re kin us with other forms of life and assist us in the transition to an ecological civilization deliberately moving away from dystopian narratives toward anticipatory imaginations of sustainable futures this volume blends chapters by top scholars in the fields of fantasy myth and young adult literature with personal reflections by award winning authors and illustrators of books for young audiences including shaun tan jane yolen katherine applegate and joseph bruchac chapters cover the works of major fantasy authors such as j r r tolkien terry pratchett j k rowling china mi[□]ville barbara henderson jeanette winterson john crowley richard powers george r r martin and kim stanley robinson they range through narratives set in the uk usa nigeria ghana pacific islands new zealand and australia across the chapters fantasy and myth are framed as spaces where visions of sustainable futures can be designed with most detail and nuance rather than merely criticizing the ecocidal status quo the book asks how mythic narratives and fantastic stories can mobilize resistance around ideas necessary for the emergence of an ecological civilization this intersectional collection considers how literature film and narrative more broadly take up the complexities of health demonstrating the pivotal role of storytelling in health politics
