how does a country in the process of becoming a world power prepare its citizens for the responsibilities of global leadership in improvised continent richard c. nida smith answers this question by illuminating the forgotten story of how over the course of the twentieth century cultural exchange programs some run by the government and others by philanthropies and major cultural institutions brought many of the most important artists and writers of latin america to live and work in the united states improvised continent is the first book to focus on cultural exchange inside the united states and how americans responded to latin american writers and artists moving masterfully between the history of ideas biography institutional history and politics and international relations and engaging works in french german spanish and portuguese c. nida smith synthesizes over seventy years of pan american cultural activity in the united states the stories behind diego rivera's murals the movies of alejandro g. iñárritu the poetry of gabriela mistral the photography of genevieve naylor and the novels of carlos fuentes these works and artists along with many others challenged u.s. citizens about their place in the world and about the kind of global relations the country's interests could allow improvised continent provides a profoundly compassionate portrayal of the latin american artists and writers who believed their practices might create a more humane world iconoclastic in spirit magical realism and the history of the emotions in latinamerica is the first study of affect and emotion in magical realist literature against the grain of a vast body of scholarship it argues that magical realism is neither exotic commodity nor postcolonial resistance but an art form fueled by a search for spaces of wonder in a disenchanted world linking the rise and fall of magical realism and kindred narrative forms to the shifting value of wonder as an emotional experience this thought provoking study proposes a radical new approach to canonical novels such as one hundred years of solitude received as one of the most convincing manifestations of the turn to affect in contemporary latin american critical thought magical realism and the history of the emotions draws on affect theory the history of emotions and new materialism to reframe key questions in latin american literature and culture
