how does religion stimulate and feed imperial ambitions and violence recently this question has acquired new urgency and in religion empire and torture bruce lincoln approaches the problem via a classic but little studied case achaemenian persia lincoln identifies three core components of an imperial theology that have transhistorical and contemporary relevance dualistic ethics a theory of divine election and a sense of salvific mission beyond this he asks how did the achaemenians understand their place in the cosmos and their moral status in relation to others why did they feel called to intervene in the struggle between good and evil what was their sense of historic purpose especially their desire to restore paradise lost and how did this lead them to deal with enemies and critics as imperial power ran its course lincoln shows how these religious ideas shaped achaemenian practice and brought the persians unprecedented wealth power and territory but also produced unmanageable contradictions as in a gruesome case of torture discussed in the book's final chapter close study of that episode leads Lincoln back to the present with a postscript that provides a searing and utterly novel perspective on the photographs from Abu Ghraib
