Each chapter includes three main sections: basic elements, writing exercises (such as harmonizing melodies), and analysis of brief excerpts and complete works.

Musicians show social establishment for the public exhibition of music beyond a strict or sensational setting. Shows created in their current structure from the casual music production of the seventeenth century to the social impacts influencing the improvement of the show likewise impacted the music considered for it. The development in music from Mozart to Beethoven has a partner in the support of the show. Also, cosmopolitan parts of music in the mid-21st century are related with the undeniably global standpoint of show crowds. Early types of the show were related with college exercises. In the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, numerous German colleges kept a collegium museum for the exhibition of orchestral compositions, and music gatherings were consistently held at Oxford and Cambridge. Getting together of novices to hear music had been a component of the Italian foundations of the Renaissance. Quite those at Bologna and Milan established in the fifteenth century, like the French foundations that succeeded them, they encouraged music as one of the humanities and expected in this regard the capability of eighteenth-century show benefactors. The more significant Italian and French institutes were that as it may mainly worried about investigating the borderlands of music and verse, and these opened a way to the drama as opposed to the show.
