here are five brilliant stories written by this providence ri author during his close association with h p lovecraft stories that reflect the dark supernatural worlds conjured up by the lovecraft circle originators of the modern weird tales published in the pulp magazines of the early 20th century the subjects of the stories touch upon the themes of teleportation ghosts mystery and vampirism the belief that jesus of nazareth is personally identical with the eternally pre existent son of god the second person of the trinity and logos is an essential component of an orthodox understanding of the incarnation this book studies the interpretations of christ s pre existence in the writings of l s thornton e l mascall j a t robinson and j macquarrie it examines how their views have emerged from their overall approach to christology in particular and to theology in general thornton and mascall firmly uphold orthodox understandings of the doctrine robinson and macquarrie reject the concept of the personal pre existence of christ regarding it as a relic of an outmoded high christology they propose that christ s pre existence be interpreted as simply an intentional pre existence in the mind and purpose of god it becomes apparent that a close parallel exists between the interpretations of the pre existence of christ in these authors and their understandings of his post existence and divine identity it is clear also that there are ambiguities inherent in the very term pre existence which leave it open to misrepresentation in addition the study acknowledges the importance of a contemporary debate on the subject of the eternity of god among anglo american philosophers of religion finally the book demonstrates that one cannot speak of a single distinctive anglican approach to the doctrine of christ s pre existence and offers some critical comments on the general shape of contemporary anglican theology
