what might one expect to learn from a probability sample study of the archdiocese of chicago can one form a national portrait of catholics in the united states from data about chicago certainly chicago is unique in its judgments about its clergy as the eminent catholic sociologist andrew m greeley argues it is this very difference that makes rigorous comparisons between chicago catholics and other catholic subpopulations possible he suggests that history and geography provide a basis for understanding the development of the catholic church not just in this specific area but also in the entire united states the catholic archdiocese of chicago it composed of two counties lake and cook at the same time the catholic population has been pushed up against the boundary of dupage county by racial change in the city so that much of the west and south side catholic population of the city has moved into the southern and western suburbs in this research area half of the catholics have attended college and half of those have attended graduate school thus the conventional image of chicago as a mix of ethnic immigrant neighborhoods has to be modified although there are still many new immigrants attending special immigrant parishes greeley argues that the official church in chicago and by inference elsewhere has not recognized the community structures that permeate the neighborhoods that it does not grasp the religious stories that shape its peoples identity and it does not understand the intense if selective loyalty of the archdiocese to its leadership as part of this argument greeley includes transcriptions of in depth interviews with former catholics this study provides a fascinating window into the world of catholicism in twenty first century urban america historical drama based on true events in 17th century england father nicholas postgate was a catholic priest who served the catholic people of north yorkshire when it was illegal to do so father postgate served for over 50 years finally captured at matthew lyth s house performing a baptism father postgate was taken to york in 1679 where he was hung drawn and quartered the story not only tells father postgates story but centres around the ordinary catholic folk of north yorkshire and the persecution they suffered for being catholics no more heartrending yet hopeful case study in christian ethics exists than in the story of south african apartheid and its recent decisive transformation john de gruchy s authoritative and newly updated account of christian complicity with and then resistance to one of the world s most notoriously repressive regimes holds indispensable lessons and dangerous memories for all concerned about evil justice and racial reconciliation in 1964 muhammad ali said of his decision to join the nation of islam i know where i m going and i know the truth and i don t have to be what you want me to be i m free to be what i want to be this sentiment the brash assertion of individual freedom informs and empowers each of the four personalities profiled in this book randal maurice jelks shows that to understand the black american experience beyond the larger narratives of enslavement emancipation and black lives matter we need to hear the individual stories drawing on his own experiences growing up as a religious african american he shows that the inner history of black americans in the 20th century is a story worthy of telling this book explores the faith stories of four african americans ethel waters mary lou williams eldridge cleaver and muhammad ali it examines their autobiographical writings interviews speeches letters and memorable performances to understand how each of these figures used religious faith publicly to reconcile deep personal struggles voice their concerns for human dignity and reinvent their public image for them liberation was not simply defined by material or legal wellbeing but by a spiritual search for community and personal wholeness
