discover and cultivate the secret traits of self made billionaires with the self made billionaire effect by john sviokla and mitch cohen imagine what atari might have achieved if steve jobs had stayed there or what steve case could have done for pepsi if he hadn t left for a start up that eventually became aol scores of billionaires worked for established corporations before they struck out on their own people like michael bloomberg and mark cuban went on to build iconic household brands why didn t their former employers hang onto to these people and why are most big companies unable to create as much value as the world s 800 self made billionaires billionaires aren t necessarily luckier smarter or harder working than the rest of us and they rarely build something brand new the key difference is their mindset they redefine what s possible and they are critical to any company looking to create massive value the self made billionaire effect breaks down the five critical habits of massive value creators so you can learn how to identify encourage and retain them and even become one yourself it will forever change the way you think about talent and business value john j sviokla is the head of global thought leadership with pricewaterhousecoopers he is a frequent speaker on innovation growth and customer behavior in addition to working with clients john serves on pwc s advisory leadership group and global thought leadership council he was on the faculty of the harvard business school for ten years and has written for harvard business review the wall street journal financial times and sloan management review mitch cohen is pwc s vice chairman during his 33 years at the firm and 20 years as a partner cohen has held a variety of leadership roles and served numerous fortune 500 clients the deluxe edition of the self made billionaire effect includes seven videos of authors john sviokla and mitch cohen expanding on the book s themes and their findings along with behind the scenes insights into what makes self made billionaires unique a study of self made billionaires reveals the key distinction between producers and performers there are about 800 self made billionaires in the world today what enables this elite group to create truly massive value and what can the rest of us learn from them john sviokla and mitch cohen set out to answer this question with the first systematic study of 120 self made billionaires including extensive interviews with icons like steve case mark cuban and t boone pickens jr the authors conclude that self made billionaires aren t necessarily smarter harder working or luckier than their peers the key difference is what they call the producer mindset in contrast to the far more common performer mindset performers strive to excel in well defined areas and they are essential to any company but producers are even more valuable because they redefine what s possible rather than simply meeting pre existing goals and standards producers think up entirely new products services strategies and business models with dramatic results this book offers fresh stories and insights into producers habits of mind it also provides corporate leaders with a new approach to selecting and managing breakthrough talent and advice about innovation and value creation for aspiring leaders or entrepreneurs this book was written for people who probably feel they never need it its main purpose is to motivate and encourage the reader whoever and wherever they are that it is possible to rise up do better and excel as a person it is easy to get into the trap of daily painful existence blaming circumstances the environment other people and things around us for our negative outcomes in life none of us love to remain poor or insignificant we all want to achieve and attain status in life we all love to excel yet very few of us do the book argues with compelling stories and evidence from history science society and academia that human destiny in its most crude form is like a garden when left alone a garden only grows with useless weeds but when good seeds are sown in it the ground is well cultivated the crops cared for and the garden teeming lively with crops that feed us well the author shares with the reader his personal experiences and those of scores of other people in the world to demonstrate the indomitable power of the human being to get better spiced with easy witty poems and scores of true stories the book convinces the reader of their power to excel the book does this using sequential themes built around eight instructively captivating chapters as follows 1 leap forward and get better 2 use your power you are more powerful than you think 3 pursue excellence it is your calling 4 avoid mediocrity and all its roots 5 accept that you are different 6 dedicate yourself to service and when you do all these and you realize it is tough 7 take heart the world seldom cheers excellence 8 now do this and leap forward in this kaleidoscopic portrait john geraint captures with a filmmaker's eye the exuberant life of this former mining community in changing times comic and evocative the book shows how the values the valley has lived by could guide the rhondda and the wider world towards a better future he was not born into luxury nor did he inherit a fortune waiting to be spent he built it from the ground up with his own relentless ambition an unshakable belief that wealth was not just about money but about power control and legacy every setback became a weapon every betrayal a lesson every failure a stepping stone toward an empire that the world would one day envy he started small selling hustling learning absorbing every secret of the marketplace until he could see patterns others missed opportunities hidden in plain sight while his peers slept he was awake studying global markets devouring biographies of moguls dissecting the psychology of power and teaching himself the art of negotiation influence and risk when the world called him reckless he called it vision when they called him cold he called it focus his rise was not explosive but deliberate a silent storm of precision moves that turned minor deals into million dollar contracts and ideas scribbled on napkins into multinational corporations the hidden secret was not luck nor genius it was obsession the kind that consumes a man until his dreams become his reality he learned that true wealth is built in silence and revealed in magnitude that the richest speak little because their actions echo louder than words he played the long game investing when others panicked expanding when others retreated and diversifying when others fixated on one source of income his business empire stretched across continents cloaked in layers of shell companies trusts and partnerships so intricate that even his competitors could not trace where his influence began or ended behind his calm smile was a mind calculating profits and power moves years ahead a strategist who could see beyond the numbers into the psychology of markets and men he understood that money was not the end goal it was the tool to buy time freedom and dominance as journalists speculated about his methods as rivals tried to copy his style he remained silent hidden behind closed doors and coded emails mastering the art of anonymity while his net worth soared past the billions he donated publicly to appear humble yet privately he acquired assets that secured his dynasty for generations his life was a paradox of exposure and secrecy generosity and control brilliance and ruthlessness and when the world finally tried to piece together how he became what he was a self made billionaire of almost mythic proportions they realized too late that the answer was never in what he did but in how he thought he saw wealth not as a destination but as a weapon and power not as a privilege but as a game to be won at all costs

Imagine what Atari might have achieved if Steve Jobs had stayed there to develop the first massmarket personal computer or what Steve Case might have done for PepsiCo if he hadn't left for a gaming start up that eventually became AOL what if Salomon Brothers had kept Michael Bloomberg or Bear Stearns had exploited the inventive ideas of Stephen Ross scores of top tier entrepreneurs worked for established corporations before they struck out on their own and became self made billionaires people like Mark Cuban John Paul DeJoria Sara Blakely and T Boone Pickens all built businesses in some cases multiple businesses that are among today's most iconic brands this fact raises two profound questions why couldn't their former employers hang on to these extraordinarily talented people and why are most big companies unable to create as much new value as the world's roughly 800 self made billionaires John Sviokla and Mitch Cohen decided to look more closely at self made billionaires because creating 1 billion or more in value is an incredible feat drawing on extensive research and interviews the authors concluded that many of the myths perpetuated about billionaires are simply not true these billionaires aren't necessarily smarter harder working or luckier than their peers they aren't all prodigies crossing the billionaire finish line in their twenties nor most of the time do they create something brand new more than 80 percent of the billionaires in the research sample earned their billions in highly competitive industries the key difference is what the authors call the producer mind set in contrast with the far more pervasive performer mind set performers strive to excel in well defined areas and are important but producers are critical to any company looking to create massive value because they redefine what's possible rather than simply meeting preexisting goals and standards combining sound judgment with imaginative vision producers think up entirely new products services strategies and business models big companies tend to reward performers and discourage the unconventional ways of producers but it's the latter who integrate multiple ideas perspectives and actions and who trust their insights enough to make game changing bets this book breaks down the five critical habits of mind of massive value creators so you can learn how to identify encourage and retain such individuals and maybe even become one yourself the self made billionaire effect will forever change the way you think about talent and business value in honor of the self made billionaire effect purchases pricewaterhousecoopers llp is making a significant contribution to donorschoose.org an online charity that connects public school teachers in need of classroom materials and experiences with individual donors who want to help pwc's gift will support financial literacy projects around the country
