the dawn of the enlightenment saw heated debates on self love do people only act out of self interest or is there a less pessimistic explanation for human behaviour maurer delves into the contributions to these debates from both famous and lesser known authors including lord shaftesbury bernard mandeville francis hutcheson joseph butler archibald campbell david hume and adam smith and puts them in their philosophical theological and economic context maurer identifies five distinct conceptions of self love and looks at their role within theories of human psychology and morality while drawing attention to the heuristic limits of our contemporary notion of egoism he compares the central arguments and the different strategies intended to morally rehabilitate human nature and self love before and during the enlightenment america today is a shadow of what it once was over the past forty years people have turned away from god and instead accepted the flawed view that morality is subjective and personal as a country we have discarded the idea that there is an absolute right and an absolute wrong this is spread through our universities where students learn only the scientific perspective without completing their education in religion and morality this has created untold social problems from the 2008 market crash to the widespread abuse of drugs and alcohol the selfish america looks closely at the transcendent reality of absolute morality and how it can be used to reestablish the word of god in our country with these steps we can save america and reestablish our moral foundations this can only be done through acknowledging that there is a transcendent physical reality a transcendent intellectual reality and a transcendent moral reality in god
