globalization and civilizations challenges established assumptions about the nature of civilizations and the supposed inevitability of the conflict between the islamic and western worlds uniquely this edited book critically interrogates the concept of civilization by asking whether it is still valid in the globalized world economy of the twenty first century the first half of the book provides an historical and theoretical context to understand the idea of civilization in political science and demonstrates how the various social economic political and cultural processes of globalization have radically altered perceptions of civilization the second half of the book looks particularly at non western examples of the interaction between globalization and civilization and includes case studies on the arab world islam china india and europe this book investigates the relationship between the international criminal court and africa the icc or the court asking why and how the international criminal justice system has so far largely failed the victims of atrocities in africa the book explores how the court degenerated from a very promising multilateral institution to being an instrumentalised politicised weaponised institution that ended up with the victims being the greatest losers instead of looking at the international criminal court as a recent alternative to a prevailing international criminal justice paradigm this book argues that the court is a manifestation of the same world order that was established by the reconquista in 1492 written from a decolonial perspective the book particularly draws on evidence from zimbabwe in order to demonstrate how the international criminal court is failing the victims of the four crimes that fall under its jurisdiction drawing on the perspectives of victims in particular this book highlights the damage caused within africa by the international criminal justice system and argues for a decolonial conception of justice the book will be of interest to researchers from across african politics international relations law and criminal justice re framing the international insists that if we are to properly face the challenges of the coming century we need to re examine international politics and development through the prism of ethics and morality international relations must now contend with a widening circle of participants reflecting the diversity and unevenness of status memory gender race culture and class this exciting new textbook challenges the implicit notions inherent in most existing international relations scholarship and instead presents the subject as seen from different vantage points in the global south divided into four sections 1 the discipline 2 key concepts and categories 3 global issues and 4 its futures it examines the ways in which world politics have been addressed by traditional core approaches and explores the limitations of these treatments for understanding both southern and northern experiences of the international the book encourages readers to consider how key ideas have been developed in the discipline and through systematic interventions by contributors from around the globe aims at both transforming and enriching the dominant terms of scholarly debate this empowering critical and reflexive tool for thinking about the diversity of experiences of international relations and for placing them front and center in the classroom will help professors and students in both the global north and the global south envision the world differently in addition to general introductory courses at both the undergraduate and graduate levels it will appeal to courses on sociology and historiography of knowledge globalization neoliberalism security the state imperialism and international political economy
