in a series of important studies american psychoanalyst heinz kohut focused attention on a fundamental aspect of human behavior the desire each person feels for a sense of relationship with and empathic responsiveness from others this book offers the first sustained application of kohut's work to the study of literature and sheds new light on the complex nature of interactions between texts and readers j brooks bouson investigates nine representative narcissistic characters from works by atwood bellow conrad dostoevsky kafka lessing mann and woolf combining a careful examination of individual characters and texts with an analysis of the critical commentaries they have generated. Bouson makes us aware of the narcissistic dramas encoded in texts, dramas that are often unconsciously replicated by critics in their interpretive narratives. In an essential way, Bouson writes the meaning of literary work grows out of the empathic event that occurs between the reader and the text. The book establishes a place for Kohut's self psychology in the study of literature and provides a refreshing perspective on the empathic dynamics of the reading and critical processes.

Table of contents: Portrait of an analyst, Doris Bernstein, 1932-1990; Norbert Freedman and Betsy Distler, 1. Gender-specific attribution of identity, 2. Female identity synthesis, 3. Female genital anxieties, conflicts, and typical mastery modes, 4. The female superego: a different perspective, 5. The female oedipal complex, 6. Gender-specific dangers in the female dyad in treatment, 7. On Cinderella.

Each person invests many of the objects in his life with his or her own unconscious meaning. Each person subsequently voyages through an environment that constantly evokes the self's psychic history, taking Freud's model of dreamwork as a model for all unconscious thinking. Christopher Bollas argues that we dreamwork ourselves into becoming who we are and illustrates how the analyst and the patient use such unconscious processes to develop new psychic structures that the patient can use to alter his or her self-experience. Building on this foundation, he goes on to describe some very special forms of self-experience, including the tragic madness of women cutting themselves, the experience of a cruising homosexual in bars, and bathes, and the demented ferocity of the fascist state of mind. An original interpreter of classical theory and clinical issues in being a character, Christopher Bollas takes the reader into the very texture of the psychoanalytic process.

Offering new conceptual insights while remaining accessible to the general reader, Christopher Bollas explores what free association tells us about human consciousness and creativity.

Bollas offers an original and illuminating theory of hysteria that weaves its well-known features, repressed sexual ideas, indifference to conversions, over-identification with the other, into the hysteric form.

The varied collection of essays presented in this volume bridges the gap between continental and Anglo-American approaches to children's literature and discusses the state of the art of what is topical in children's literature studies in Europe and the United States. Varied as the different subject areas under discussion are, considering different subgenres, historical periods, and geographical contexts, two main themes surface in nearly all the essays ideology and children's literature on the one hand and images of childhood on the other the contributions illustrate the wide range of subject areas and the increasing level of sophistication with which criticism of ideology and cultural studies have enriched children's literature criticism the essays address among others the influence of globalisation and mass market culture on the production of children's books as well as the choices governing the production of translations and adaptations of texts for young readers representing a broad array of methodological approaches and of representations of childhood this publication intends to render visible actual manifestations of the tension between pedagogy and aesthetics inherent to and constitutive of children's literature sylvia plath es una de las poetas más conocidas y controvertidas del siglo xx desde su muerte en 1963 el debate crítico sobre su obra ha sido animado y en ocasiones incluso hostil esta obra ilustra cómo leer a plath desde una perspectiva alternativa utilizando la teoría de julia kristeva sobre el lenguaje político y que permite una apreciación de los poemas que va más allá de lo biográfico al hacer énfasis en cambio en los textos de ese modo se engrana con la primera persona como una herramienta heurística compleja e inestable al explorar los poemas en términos de su trascendencia en lugar de centrarse exclusivamente en su significado explora la manera en la que la obra de plath produce una crisis de subjetividad oratoria y a partir de ahí emerge la naturaleza revolucionaria de la voz poética in the mystery of things christopher bollas takes the reader right to the heart of psychotherapy examining the mysterious aspects of the self that are revealed by analysis the method of enquiry at the heart of psychoanalysis that is free association runs contrary to everything that we are taught is the logical rational scientific way to acquire data yet it is only through using such an apparently illogical and subversive method that the pathological structures in thinking can be penetrated and the self underneath revealed and worked with by the analyst christopher bollas focuses on the nature and effects of the free associative process using clinical studies he highlights how aspects such as mental illness and creative or artistic acts can reveal much about the self power plays is a brilliant depiction of what happens when there is a covert attempt to impose rules on the behavior of the other rules moreover which regardless of how they are rationalized are patently meant to benefit only one person as such it may be the first phenomenological treatment of power transactions between people from a psychodynamic and interpersonal framework a major theme throughout is that the power plays that are not politicized are as abusive if not more so than those that are if only because they often go unrecognized like a movie uses films as a stepping stone window and metaphor to explore fundamental interpersonal issues and what better metaphor than images over 60 feet high elevated to the status of pop icon that mirror and beckon us from every nook and cranny of our image loving surface worshipping culture this book contains the names and addresses of acquisitions editors at top publishing houses as well as their area of expertise and information on top literary agents first time and experienced authors will find the information they need to get their big break in the writing business instead of having their manuscripts end up in the slush pile this collection of essays selected by leonard tennenhouse marks the emergence of a renewed interest in psychoanalytic criticism and reflects the variety of directions in which that discipline has moved in recent years publisher man's perception of the finite nature of life is always present resulting in anxieties of varying intensity depending on the person's character and on the phases of life he is going through de masi is aware of the philosophical sociological religious or mystical approaches to the problem of death but he chooses to focus on and remain within the theoretical frame of reference of psychoanalysis he explores how different psychoanalytic theories have addressed the issue of death its presence or absence in the unconscious as well as the implications of the theories of the death instinct on a more strictly clinical and technical level moreover de masi is interested in thinking about the psychological resources available to man to make death thinkable when its inevitable occurrence needs to be faced he is concerned with the transformation of the thought of death from an unthinkable catastrophic event to a natural conclusion of one's existence as a psychoanalyst he explores the quality of the anxiety accompanying the idea of the natural occurrence of death which however is a perturbing presence in the mind of the average man of our western civilization we might fear sense and anticipate the death of our loved ones and we know that when it occurs we will need to face the emptiness that will result yet the emptiness we will leave proves to be unthinkable what do we mean then by fear of death what is death's status in our mind what is it that torments us most significantly how can we conceptualize our fear of death from a psychoanalytic perspective gestures of healing shows how the dominant novelists of american and british modernism james conrad ford forster joyce woolf lawrence fitzgerald hemingway and faulkner express a common condition of pain anxiety produced by the experience of chaos in the self john j clayton seeks the source of this condition not in vague reference to modern society nor in philosophical trends but rather in the families of these writers clayton argues that although their situations were very different these writers had in common certain patterns particularly a weak or absent father and a central strongwilled mother that in the absence of coherent grounding in the community shaped a fragmented incomplete self after tracing the often tragic effects of modernist anxiety on the writers lives clayton explores how the fiction created by each author gestures toward healing he shows how the writers use the reader much as a patient uses an analyst and how the culture that enthroned modernism looked to it for the same healing the book while psychoanalytically informed is readable personal in tone and free of jargon gestures of healing concludes with extended studies of james lawrence and woolf
