a collection of thirteen essays considered classics in the field of urban politics from leading scholar clarence stone with new essays by the editors and by stone himself that contextualize the impact of his previous works and suggest new directions for researchers in the past twenty years the study of urban politics has shifted from a predominant concern with political culture and ethos to a preoccupation with political economy particularly that of urban development urban scholars have come to recognize that cities are shaped by forces beyond their boundaries from that focus have emerged the views that cities are clearly engaged in economic competition that market processes are shaped by national policy decisions sometimes intentionally and sometimes inadvertently and that the costs and benefits of economic growth are unevenly distributed but what else needs to be said about the policies and politics of urban development to supplement prevailing theories the politics of urban development argues that the role of local actors in making development decisions merits closer study whatever the structural constraints politics still matters collectively the essays provide ample evidence that local government officials and other community actors do not simply follow the imperatives that derive from the national political economy they are able to assert a significant degree of influence over the shared destiny of an urban population the impact of the collection is to heighten awareness of local political practices and of how and why they make a difference

these two volumes provide a panoramic survey of the patterns causes and consequences of urbanization in asia the volume i examines the physical aspects of urbanization and the volume ii deals with the human and environmental impacts together they form a ground breaking insight into the nature and prospects of asian urbanization adapté du résumé de l'éditeur
