georges enderle before presenting some introductory remarks on the topic of this volume i should like to outline briefly the context from which this selection of articles originates it seems to me necessary to emphasise these circumstances in order to make clearer the contours of what is said and what is not said and to understand it better this context involves firstly a general evaluation of the state of the business ethics debate today and secondly considerations of the question of what attitude and strategy should be chosen in order to promote business ethics most effectively on the present state of affairs of the business ethics debate today it is extremely difficult if not impossible to gain even a rough overview of the business ethics debate in the different countries of europe and north america many activities take place in informal circles and on a local and regional level linguistic and other barriers impede the spread of information about them and often they are not even labelled business ethics at the same time so many other things sail under the flag of business ethics that one sometimes wonders if it should not be replaced by another flag for instance new methods of public relations or better motivation of company s employees yet in spite of these difficulties in defining business ethics activities one statement at least can be made with certainty
