an anthology of contemporary poets presents works that reflect the diversity in american poetry

when carolyn forché chose barbara cully's first book the new intimacy for the national poetry series she wrote cully is a poet reading the world for the brutality of its inequities aware of the flattening compression of historical memory and the dissolution of the body this new book offers a critique of the heroic that results in elegy and wisely offers no resolution these poems point to the forms of faith as both genius and as the fount of much of the world's anguish such writing proceeds from the recognition of the end of irony in it elegy has become finally all joseph pulitzer had not originally intended to award a prize for poetry an initiative by the poetry society of america provided the initial impetus to establish the prize first awarded in 1922 the supplement volume chronicles the whole history of how the awards for this category developed giving an account based mainly on confidential jury protocols from the pulitzer prizes office at new york's columbia university this volume completes the series the pulitzer prize archive alphabetically arranged articles on 107 poets from around the world accompanied by fifteen essays on various genres and schools of poetry ann lauterbach's poetry is quantum packed inside its own reality releasing beams of light and time that bend across the world of human beauty without having ever left the radiant point where the poems begin this simultaneity is her gift and the mystery and longing in her work the wit and heart are the things we feel on our skin don delillo
