this book draws on research in psychology and behavioral economics to show how striving to live up to our identity claims profoundly affects our daily lives the author argues the claims we make about who we are and what we stand for powerfully influence us and our social world asking questions such as why do people resist the temptation to cheat when cheating would benefit them greatly and no one would find out why do people express different beliefs about climate change when they are first reminded of their political affiliation why do people prefer to be compensated for donating blood with cholesterol screening than with money miller puts forth a novel and compelling argument regarding how strongly our identity claims affect our daily lives the book provides explanations for many forms of puzzling behavior such as why people sometimes act against their economic self interest how they avoid situations that test their moral identities and how they respond to failures to live up to their moral identities it paints an intriguing picture of people s investment in their identity claims by showing how they seek opportunities to demonstrate their validity avoid actions and circumstances that challenge their legitimacy and employ psychological defenses when others challenge their legitimacy based on extensive research in the fields of psychology economics and political science this book is fascinating reading for students and academics interested in identity and the self it also provides an expanded tool kit for those who seek behavioral change in their organization or community security strategies of middle powers in the asia pacific examines what drives the different regional security strategies of four middle powers in the asia pacific australia indonesia south korea and malaysia drawing on the extant middle power literature the authors argue that the regional security strategies of middle powers could take two forms namely functional or normative a functional strategy means that the middle power targets its resources to address a specific problem that it has a high level of interest in while a normative strategy refers to a focus on promoting general behavioural standards and confidence building at the multilateral level this book argues that whether a middle power ultimately employs a more functional or normative regional security strategy depends on its resource availability and strategic environment a fascinating charles duhigg and must read annie duke page turning package publishers weekly starred review for understanding identity and showing how our groups have a powerful influence on our feelings beliefs and behavior and can inspire both personal change and social movements if you re like most people you probably believe that your identity is stable but in fact your identity is constantly changing often outside your conscious awareness and sometimes even against your wishes to reflect the interests of the groups you belong to in the power of us psychologists dominic packer and jay van bavel integrate their own cutting edge research in psychology and neuroscience to explain how identity really works and how to harness its dynamic nature to boost cooperation and productivity overcome bias escape from echo chambers break political gridlock foster dissent and mobilize for change lead effectively galvanize action to address persistent global problems along the way they explore such seemingly unrelated phenomena as why a small town in germany spent decades divided by shoes why beliefs persist after they are disproven how working together synchronizes our brains what makes selfish people generous why effective leaders say we a lot and how playing soccer can reduce age old conflicts understanding how identity works allows people to take control moving beyond wondering who am i to answer instead who do i want to be packed with fascinating insights vivid case studies and a wealth of pioneering research the power of us will change the way you understand yourself and the people around you forever drawing on insights from differentiation theory this book examines the participation of middle powers in multilateralism taking australia indonesia and south korea as examples the book examines these countries roles in regional organizations and particularly during the creation of the asia pacific economic cooperation apec and east asia summit through its analysis the book argues that middle powers pursue dilution of major power stratificatory forces as well as functionally differentiated roles for themselves in multilateral diplomacy the book sets out a valuable new framework to explain and understand the behaviour of middle powers in multilateralism this is a synthesis of contributions from eminent social psychologists and organizational scientists that address issues about leadership and power from a fresh perspective this edited volume provides a comprehensive analysis of the transformations in turkey s transatlantic connection including political economic and security relations the book concentrates on the question of how these transformations in conjunction with several other factors are reflected over turkey s foreign policy behavior and new alignment preferences contributors especially delve into regional affairs of turkey seeking to show how the transatlantic frame alternatively impact turkey s policies in different neighborhoods arguing that turkish foreign policy cannot be understood without careful analysis of multiple international pressures and changing dynamics at the domestic political scenery
