jennifer griffiths s at risk black youth and the creative imperative in the post civil rights era focuses on literary representations of adolescent artists as they develop strategies to intervene against the stereotypes that threaten to limit their horizons the authors of the analyzed works capture and convey the complex experience of the generation of young people growing up in the era after the civil rights movement through creative experiments they carefully consider what it means to be narrowed within the scope of a sociological problem all while trying to expand the perspective of creative liberation in short they explore what it means to be deemed an at risk youth this book looks at crucial works beginning in 1968 ranging from sapphire s push and the kid walter dean myers s monster and dael orlandersmith s the gimmick to bill gunn s johnnas each text offers unique representations of black gifted children whose creative processes help them to navigate simultaneous hypervisibility and invisibility as racialized subjects the book addresses the ways that adolescents experience the perilous at risk label which threatens to narrow adolescent existence at a developmental moment that requires an orientation toward possibility and a freedom to experiment ultimately at risk considers the distinct possibilities and challenges of the post civil rights era and how the period allows for a more honest multilayered and forthright depiction of black youth subjectivity against the adultification that forecloses potential writing the survivor the rape novel in late twentieth century american fiction identifies a new genre of american fiction the rape novel that recenters narratives of sexual violence on the survivors of violence and abuse rather than the perpetrators the rape novel arose during the women s liberation movement as women writers collectively challenged the traditional erasure of female subjectivity and agency found in earlier representations of sexual violence in american fiction the rape novel not only foregrounds survivors and their stories in a textual centering that affirms their dignity and self worth but also develops new narratological strategies for portraying violent disturbing subject matter in bringing together many key women s texts of the last decades of the 20th century the rape novel demonstrates the centrality of sexual assault to women's fiction of this era the rape novels of the 21st century continue the political activism inherent in the genre educating readers offering community to survivors and encouraging social activism as the stories of male survivors are increasingly told a radical reconsideration of late twentieth century american novels writing the survivor underscores the importance of women's activism upon the novel's form and content and reveals the portrayal of rape as rape to be an interethnic imperative seminar paper from the year 2015 in the subject english language and literature studies literature grade 1-3 ruhr university of bochum course african american novel language english abstract the research question of this essay is to what extent can features of a slave narrative be incorporated into a contemporary novel as push and which features have to be altered in order to reflect specific cultural realities sapphire's first novel 1996 is told in the african american vernacular voice of obese and illiterate 16 year old clareece precious jones who lives with her abusive mother in harlem the novel begins with precious being pregnant with her second child by her father who has been repeatedly raping her since childhood after being expelled from high school due to her pregnancy she is placed in an alternative school program where she learns to read and write with a group of other young women as she becomes literate her life begins to change of the several essays written on push most authors have focused on topics such as race and social class food consumption and obesity disability and the female body rape incest and trauma as well as on the topic of transformation only richardson has established a relationship between push and the slave narrative in his essay close up push precious and new narratives of slavery in harlem by showing recurring slave narrative motifs including precious detachment from her mother and father her sexual and physical abuse and her quest for literary and freedom 163 in this essay i will go a step further and not only focus on the similarities between push and the slave narrative but also discuss which impact the differences such as the replacement of the antebellum south into an urban setting and the replacement of slave holders into abusive and exploiting parents have on the narrative i will begin the essay with a contextual chapter on the genre of slave narrative and its defining features then i will focus on sapphire s push and illustrate the differences to a slave narrative focusing on the urban setting of harlem and the parents as tormentors in a next step i will discuss the similarities between push and the slave narrative focusing on the themes of abuse and exploitation as well as literacy transformation and finally on escaping and being a free member of society by day tiff proulx works as a living statue posing as the statue of liberty for the french quarter s tourist trade in the aftermath of hurricane katrina by night she descends into the darkness costumed as the angel of mercy defending and protecting the storm refugees from the thugs who pock the city s wayward streets but her acts of heroism are no accident tiff s days as an innocent college student came to an abrupt end after a national guardsman pretending to be a good samaritan raped her during the height of the storm s fury tiff s skills as a living statue include extraordinary stealth and an uncanny ability to render herself completely motionless using these powers she transforms herself into a vigilante hero combing the quarter to fight evil and injustice as well as to hunt down the man who plunged her life into despair during the storm s darkest hours there are two of them now i can tell by the sound of their standard issue shoes hurtling across the cobblestones of the cemetery walk running breathlessly one after the other two new orleans policemen chase me through the dark recesses of st louis no 1 cemetery and they re after little old me or more precisely they re after her they re dying to get their hands on the angel of mercy this place is spooky enough during the day at night it s a whole nother kind of fright i m standing inside the crumbling entryway to one of the above ground crypts above ground on account of the earth in these parts swollen as it is with the ever present waters of the new orleans basin and it smells in here why mince words it smells like death i m trying hard not to imagine the corpses lying in the vaults just beyond my wings and the bones and the demons and god knows what else ghostly demarcations i suppose you might call them if you believe in that sort of thing i thought i had given these two the slip back on royal street but they caught up with me somehow on canal where i tried to secret myself among a gaggle of tourists making their way back to the hotels from gambling their lives away at bally s on the riverfront from the book
